THE NATURE OF COMMUNISM IN OCCUPIED CHINA

MONDAY, MAY 13, 1957

UNITED STATES SENATE,
SUBCOMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE ADMINISTRATION
OF THE INTERNAL SECURITY ACT AND OTHER
INTERNAL SECURITY LAWS, OF THE
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, D. C.

The subcommittee met, pursuant to call, at 2:40 p. m., in room 424, Senate Office Building, Senator Roman L. Hruska presiding.

Also present: Robert Morris, chief counsel; William Rusher, associate counsel; and Benjamin Mandel, research director.

Senator HRUSKA. The committee will come to order.

Mr. MORRIS. Senator, before proceeding with the witness for today, I would like to offer for the record two charts about the Chinese Communists on the mainland, published by the Asian People's Anti-Communist League, Republic of China, the years 1955 and 1956.

These have been transmitted by Ku Cheng-kang, chairman of the Asian People's Anti-Communist League, who was here on Friday and he met with at least one member of the subcommittee and with the staff and presented this, among other documents, in connection with the hearings that we have on the general nature of the Chinese Communist organization and its effects upon the United States.

I would like to offer these for the record, Mr. Chairman, and may they be printed as part of the official record together with a letter of transmittal.

Senator HRUSKA. The charts will be received, together with the letter of transmittal.

(The letter of transmittal follows:)

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

MAY 10, 1957.

Mr. ROBERT MORRIS,
Chief Counsel, the Internal Security Subcommittee,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. MORRIS: At your request, I wish to transmit to you herewith two series of charts about Chinese Communists on the mainland. It has long been our intention to expose the sinister designs of world communism and the Communist atrocities against our mainland compatriots. Based on original Communist documents as well as reliable data obtained by various means, the charts have been edited by our scholars and experts into the form of simple statements with a view to presenting a vivid picture of the Communists as they are.

The two series of charts published in 1955 and 1956 deal with every field of Communist activities on the mainland. They illustrate the pattern of Communist subversive activities in Asia, of Communist infiltration in Korea and Japan, the relationship between Chinese Communist regime and Soviet Russia, the control mechanisms of the Chinese Reds, the Red China's financial and economic policies, opium cultivation and traffic, and many other interesting aspects of the Communist regime.

Efforts are being made to compile more charts of the same nature. I shall be glad to send them to you when they are brought out.

With warm personal regards,

Yours sincerely,

/s/ KU CHENG-KANG,
Chairman, Asian Peoples' Anti-Communist League,
President, China Chapter.

(The charts referred to are reproduced herewith:)

ACTIONS

MILITARY, UNIFIED AND CENTRALIZED INTERNATIONAL PROLETARIAT PARTY---COMMUNIST PARTY LEADERSHIP

1. Originated from the "Labor Movement of the Second International"
2. Destined for the materialization of proletariat dictorship.
3. Up holding the 'Traditions since the Paris Commune'.

FIRST REVOLUTIONARY, SUBVERSIVE VENTURE, 1918-1921.

1. Proletariat dictatorship in Soviet Russia;
2. Failure of the proletariat in other countries;
3. Opposition of two rival camps:
   The presence of Soviet Russia aggravated the crisis of the capitalistic powers as well as intensified class struggles.

SECOND REVOLUTIONARY, SUBVERSIVE VENTURE.

1. Emergence of Eastern European satellites;
2. Fall of the Chinese mainland;
3. Appearance of Asian satellites;
4. Revolutionary activities in colonies;
5. Infiltration, agitation and subversive

STRATEGY

STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES

1. Expansion of influence among the working masses -- Control of labor unions;
2. Developing influence among the city and country petite bourgeoisie, especially among the peasants;
3. Forming close links with revolutions taking place in the many colonies and semi-colonies states and their related areas;
4. Rendering support to any anti-imperialist movement in the colonies;
5. Getting rid of extreme patriotism;
6. Implementing the slogans of "agrarian revolution" in the colonies and attacking Catholic priests, Christian missionaries and others of similar occupations;
7. Reaching a modus vivendi with capitalist class both at home and in the colonies.

TACTICAL COURSES

1. Careful estimation of conditions at home and abroad, comparison of relative strength of the classes, determination of slogans and organization for mobilization;
2. Presenting slogans for the transitional period which must correspond with the objective of seizure of political power;
3. With the revolution reaching its climax and the people starting to riot, direct attacks should be launched against the capitalist nations;
4. "United front" assuming important position;
5. Participation in "reactionary labor unions" thereby seizing leadership;
6. Using capitalist parliaments as forms for instigation and propaganda.

"STRUGGLE" STRATEGY

1. For workers:
   a. "Industrial struggle" problems;
   b. "Political struggle" problems;
   c. "World politics" problems.
2. For peasants:
   a. Raising partial demands;
   b. Enlarging the scope of the slogan for "confiscation of big land holdings" and inauguration of "government

THEORIES

- Theoretical basis--The collapse of Capitalism is unavoidable.
- Fundamental strength--The proletariat and its political party, i.e. the Communist party.
- Reserve Strength:
  - Direct Potential:
    - Peasants at home and Transitional classes;
    - Proletariat of neighboring countries;
    - Revolutionary movements in colonies and dependent countries;
    - Victory of proletariat dictatorship.
  - Indirect potential:
    - Contradictions between nonproltariat classes;
    - Contradictions and wars between the capitalist countries.

GENERAL CRISIS OF THE IMPERIALIST PERIOD

1. Emergence of Eastern European satellites;
2. Fall of the Chinese mainland;
3. Appearance of Asian satellites;
4. Revolutionary activities in colonies;
5. Infiltration, agitation and subversive activities in free, democratic areas.

FUTURE SUBVERSIVE VENTURES

1. For workers:
   a. "Industrial struggle" problems;
   b. "Political struggle" problems;
   c. "World politics" problems.
2. For peasants:
   a. Raising partial demands;
   b. Enlarging the scope of the slogan for "confiscation of big land holdings" and inauguration of "government by workers and peasants."
3. For youths:
   Working through the Young Communist International and its branches.
4. For Women:
   Undertaking systematic work
5. For colonies:
   a. Special demands;
   b. Basic demands;
   c. Support to colonial struggles everywhere.

VARIOUS FORMS OF PROLETARIAT DICTATORSHIP DURING THE TRANSITIONAL PERIOD

1. In highly capitalist countries:
   a. Politically, direct transfer to proletariat dictatorship;
   b. Confiscation of all big industries and organizing plenty of state-owned sovietized farms;
   c. Small amount of free market activities.
2. In countries where capitalism was under-developed:
   a. From democratic revolutions to socialist revolutions in certain countries;
   b. Somewhat similar to proletariat revolution but still fulfilling a number of democratic functions;
   c. Peasants' uprisings assuming important role;
   d. Organization of peasants along the line of cooperation.
3. In colonies, semi-colonies and dependent countries:
   a. "Anti-feudalistic" and "anti-capitalistic" agrarian revolutions;
   b. Anti-imperialism and fight for national independence;
   c. Preparations for transfer to proletariat dictatorship;
   d. Receiving support from countries already under proletariat dictatorship.
4. In more backward countries:
   a. The central task being national independence;
   b. Receiving support from countries already under proletariat dictatorship and opening a direct path toward socialism.

GENERAL CRISIS OF THE IMPERIALIST PERIOD

1. Opposition and conflicts among imperialist countries;
2. Outbreak of popular struggles in colonies;
3. Revolutionary actions in imperialist countries;
4. Leadership assumed by Soviet Russia's proletariat dictatorship for the world's revolutionary movements.

SALIENT FEATURES OF THE TRANSITIONAL PERIOD FROM THE CAPITALISM TO SOCIALISM

1. Civil war waged by the proletariat against the capitalist classes;
2. National wars and rebellions in colonies formed a part of proletariat revolution;
3. Co-existence between capitalism and socialism:
   a. Sometime 'peaceful co-existence';
   b. Sometime 'resorting to wars'
4. Ties between the Soviet states and the colonies became increasingly closer.

1. Proletariat revolutions in other countries;
2. Armament of the Soviet bloc in preparation for war;
3. Liberation movements in colonies
   - Proletariat assuming leadership and command;
   - Bourgeois revolution gradually developing into proletariat revolution;
   - Military alliance between colonies and Soviet Russia.
4. The 'Peace Mask'.
   - 'Peaceful co-existence' to cover aggressive actions;
   - Political offensive to divide democratic powers;
   - 'Trade offensive' to widen contradictions among democratic powers;
   - Cultural exchange to disseminate poisonous Communist ideologies

INTERNATIONAL UNITED FRONT

The Communist plan for world conquest was blueprinted in the "International Program" of the third international. It is the guiding principle to be carried out by the Communist parties the world over.

So far as localities are concerned, distinction should be made of "Proletariat Revolution" in the capitalist countries and the "Colonial Revolution" in the undeveloped countries. According to Lenin's theory, Soviet Russia should extend its direct assistance to these revolutions. The colonial revolution is part and parcel of the world revolution. With regard to strategy, in carrying out the Communist revolution, the proletariat class of various countries is its primary tool. Besides, it is necessary to win peasants' cooperation and to exploit to the limit the contradictions existing among nations. The ultimate objective is proletariat dictatorship. The conquered nation should finally be one of the members of Soviet Union. The so-called "peaceful Coexistence" is the basis of the present Soviet "Peace Offensive". As to time, Lenin took advantage of the conclusion of World War I to seize the political power of Russia. Immediately after the end of World War II, Soviet Russia made use of the chance thus offered to seize the political power of Red China, and satellite countries in East Europe and Asia were set up one after another. Afterwards, Soviet Russia manufactured wars, and created disturbances in different parts of the world, so as to facilitate its plot for world conquest. This is the reason why Soviet opposition to war and calling for peace are nothing but a propaganda trick.

REVOLUTIONS IN COLONIES — PROLETARIAT REVOLUTIONS

SOCIALISM

2. After complete stripping and seizure, the dictator's wealth was accumulated.

1. After Soviet Russia's example a number of reforms were undertaken.

CONDITIONS FOR WORLD PROLETARIAT DICTATORSHIP

1. Collective victory won by Socialism in certain countries;
2. A union formed of proletariat states either already existed or newly inaugurated;
3. A number of such states having already extended to some colonies;
4. Such states would finally form a union of Soviet Socialist Republics which, under the international proletariat leadership, would unite the whole mankind and act as a single nation.

EXPLANTION

The subversive activities of the Chinese Communists in various free countries of Asia are, to all intents and purposes, more dangerous than direct military invasion. Their activities are in close coordination with the Communist parties of these countries and at the same time giving them guidance and support. On the other hand, by making use of those organizations established by their sympathizer and fellow-travellers, the Communists resort to infiltration tactics.

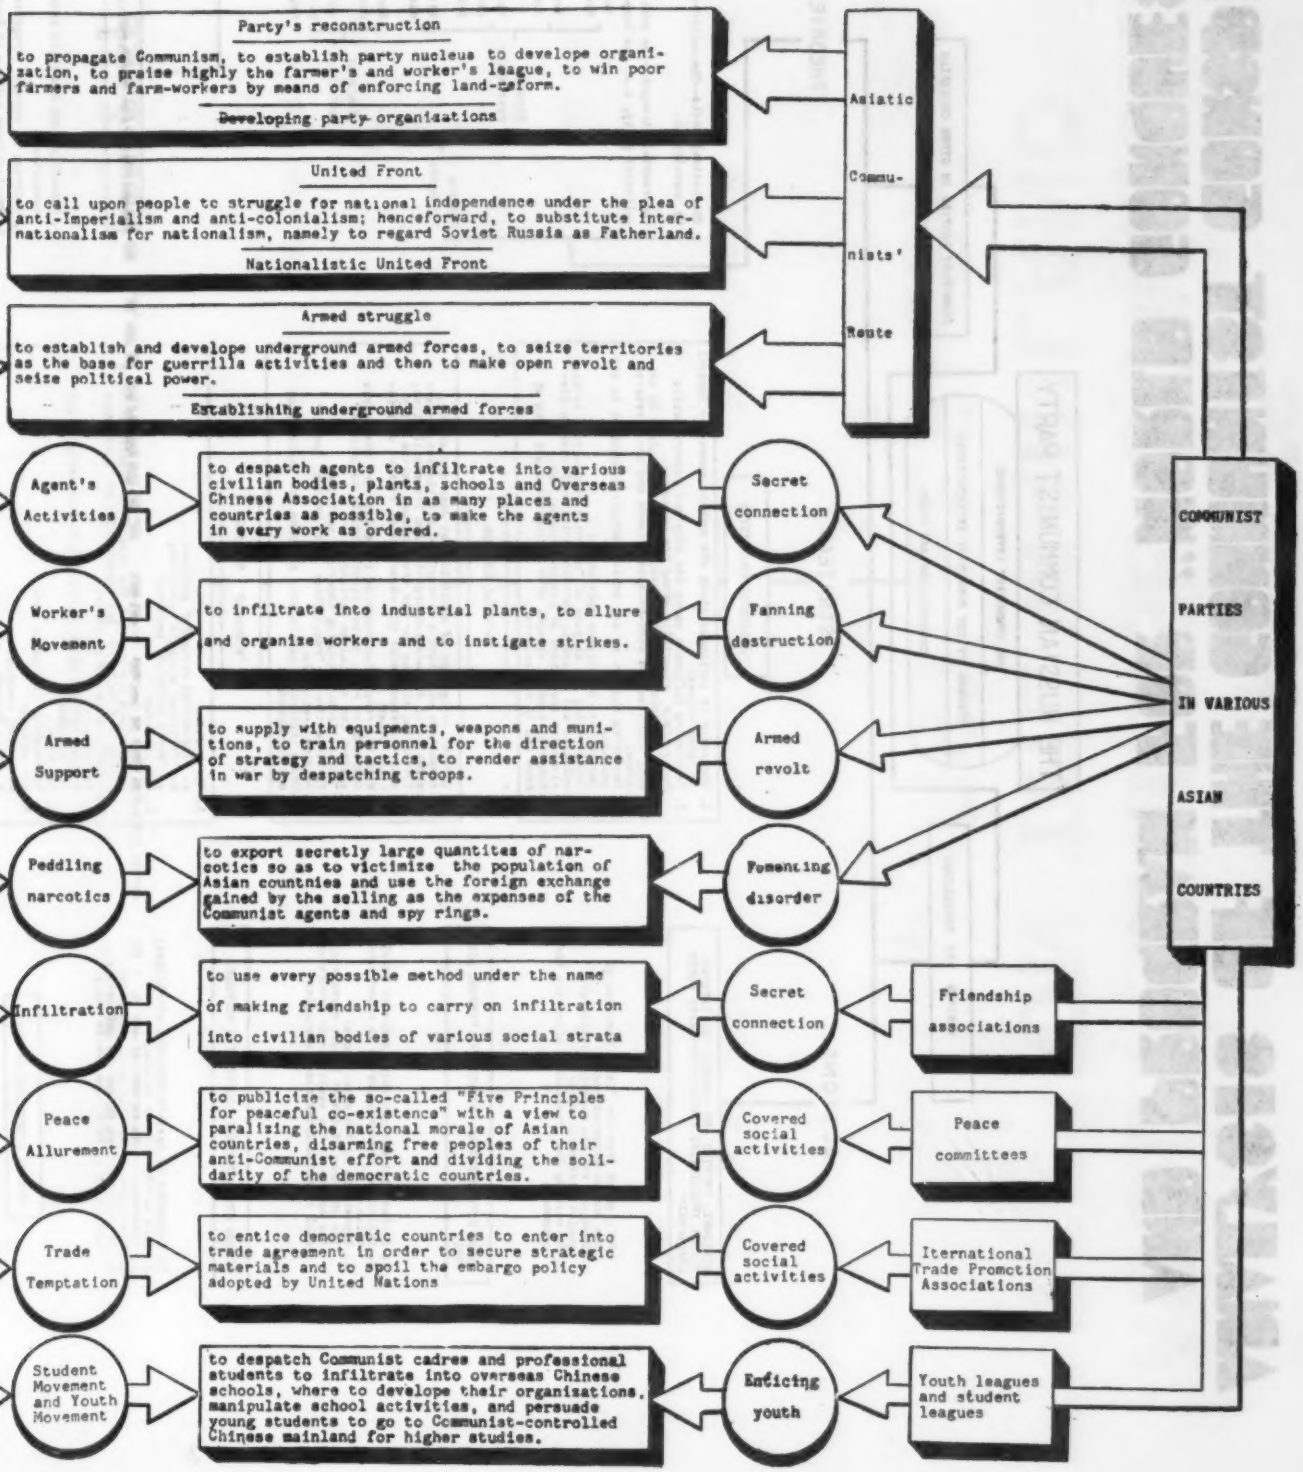

CHART ILLUSTRATING CHINESE COMMUNISTS' AGGRESSION AND INFILTRATION IN KOREA AND JAPAN

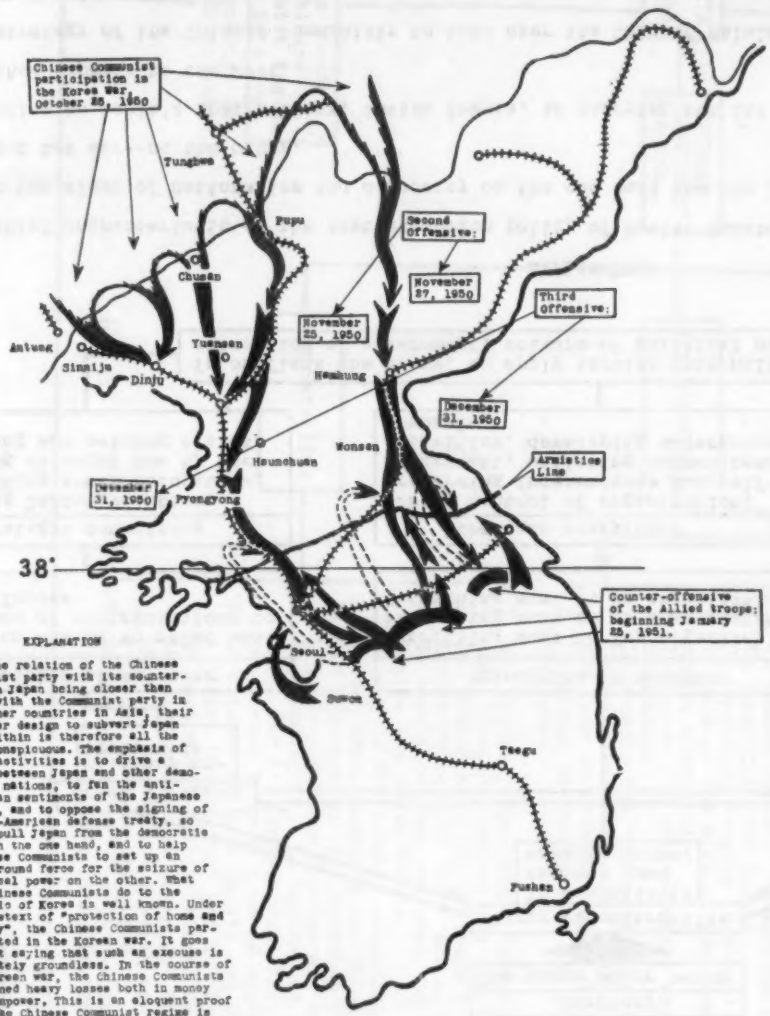

EXPLANATION

The relation of the Chinese Communist party with its counterpart in Japan being closer than those with the Communist party in any other countries in Asia, their sinister design to subvert Japan from within is therefore all the more conspicuous. The emphasis of their activities is to drive a wedge between Japan and other democratic nations, to fan the anti-American sentiments of the Japanese people, and to oppose the signing of Nippon-American defense treaty, so as to pull Japan from the democratic camp on the one hand, and to help Japanese Communists to set up an underground force for the seizure of political power on the other. What the Chinese Communists do to the republic of Korea is well known. Under the pretext of "protection of home and country", the Chinese Communists participated in the Korean war. It goes without saying that such an excuse is completely groundless. In the course of the Korean war, the Chinese Communists sustained heavy losses both in money and manpower. This is an eloquent proof that the Chinese Communist regime is the Soviet instrument for the realization of its dream of world conquest.

STATISTICS OF COMMUNIST LOSSES IN BOTH MANPOWER AND MATERIAL DURING THEIR KOREAN CAMPAIGN:

Communist Casualties -- 1,300,000. (according to reliable estimates of many sources)

Material supplies for the Korean Communists (according to incomplete statistics of Chinese Communist sources):

(1) From 1950 to the beginning of 1952 (including those directly supplied from the Northeastern region):
- Foodstuffs ---------- over 13,680 tons plus sums of cash equivalent to the value of 5,700 tons.
- Meats ---------- 600 tons plus over 3,337,000 catties.
- Blankets ---------- over 100,000
- Cloth ---------- 25,000 feet.
- Cotton-padded clothes ---- 390,000 suits plus 84,000 pieces of clothings of other types
- Cotton ---------- 400,000 catties
- Towels ---------- 950,000
- Shoes ---------- 150,000 pairs
- 'Comfort' packages ------- 180,000
- 'Comfort' sums ---------- old JMP182,880,000,000
- Cigarettes ---------- 300,000 packages
- Other articles ---------- over 1,279,000 boxes

(2) From early 1952 to May, 1953:
- Foodstuffs ---------- 9,300,000 catties (representing 'contribution' from the Chinese Communist troops stationed in Korea by cutting down their own food rations).
- Cotton ---------- 500,000 catties
- Winter hats ---------- 500,000
- Cotton-padded and Rubber-soled shoes ------- 500,000 pairs each
- Ambulances ---------- 15
- 'Poison-proof' ---------- 1,000 suits
- Rubbers ---------- 1,000 pairs
- Disinfectants ---------- Less than 100 tons
- Sprayers ---------- 300 sets

(3) Chinese Communist Red Cross supplies for North Korean Communists:
- Foodstuffs ---------- 115,688 bags
- Clothing ---------- 440,000 pieces plus 1,000 boxes.

(4) According to stipulations of the Chinese Communist-North Korean "Economic and Cultural Cooperation Agreement" signed on Nov. 25 1953:
- (a) Up to the end of 1953, all Chinese Communist material supplies and money accounts in North Korea should be turned over to the Korean Communists free of charge, and
- (b) During the four years from 1954 to 1957, material supplies, including foodstuffs, coal, cotton cloth, construction materials, etc. worth JMP 2,000,000,000,000, should be given annually to the Korean Communists, free of charge.

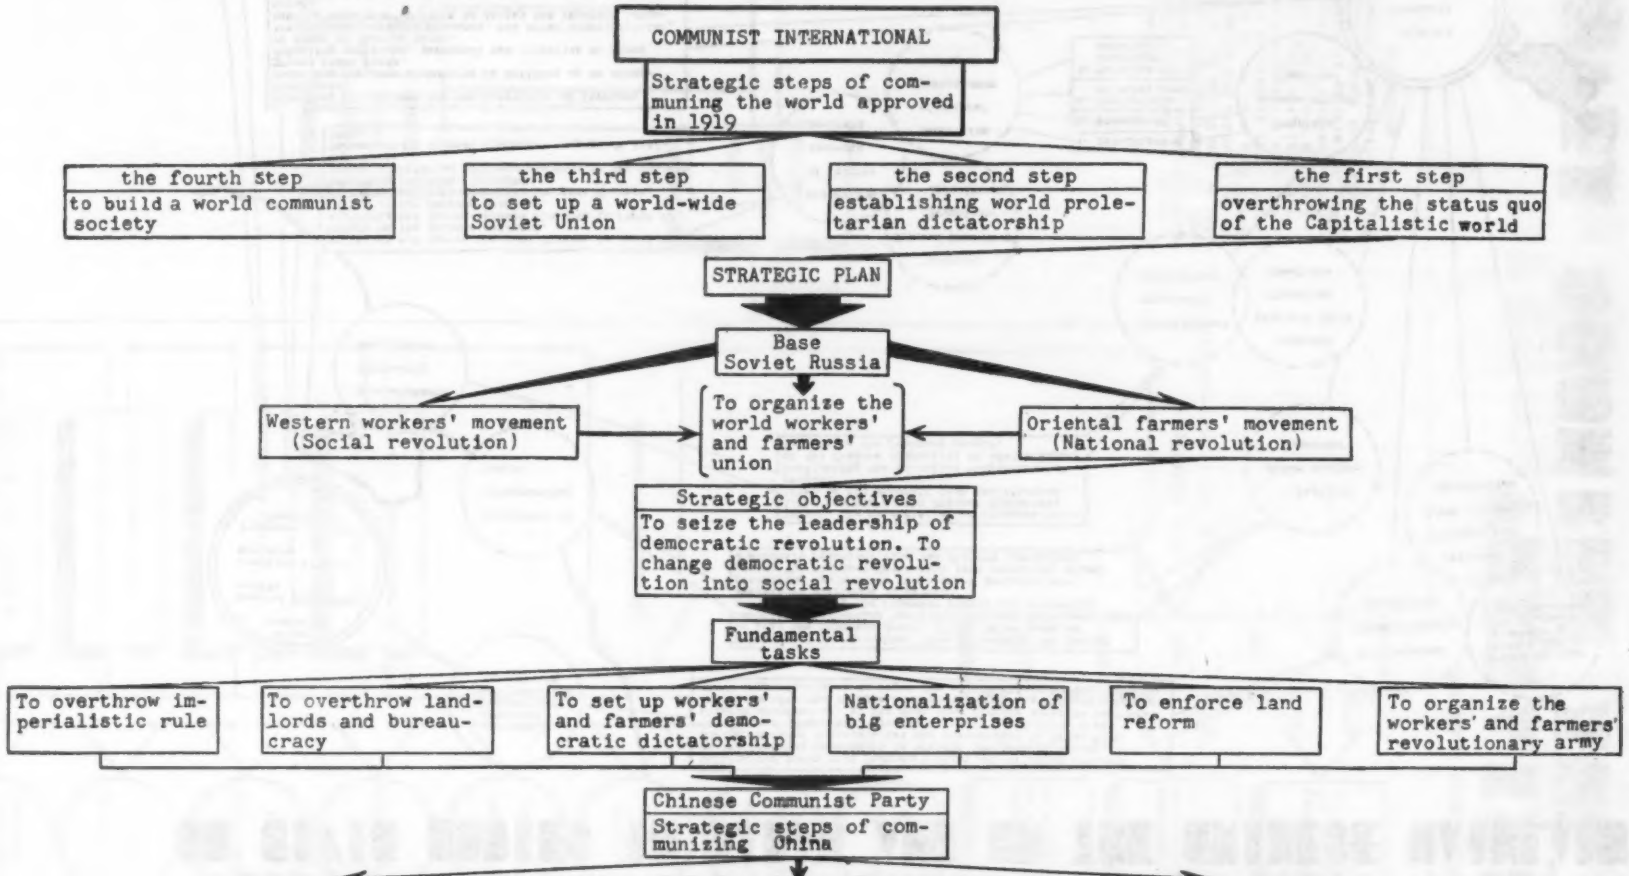
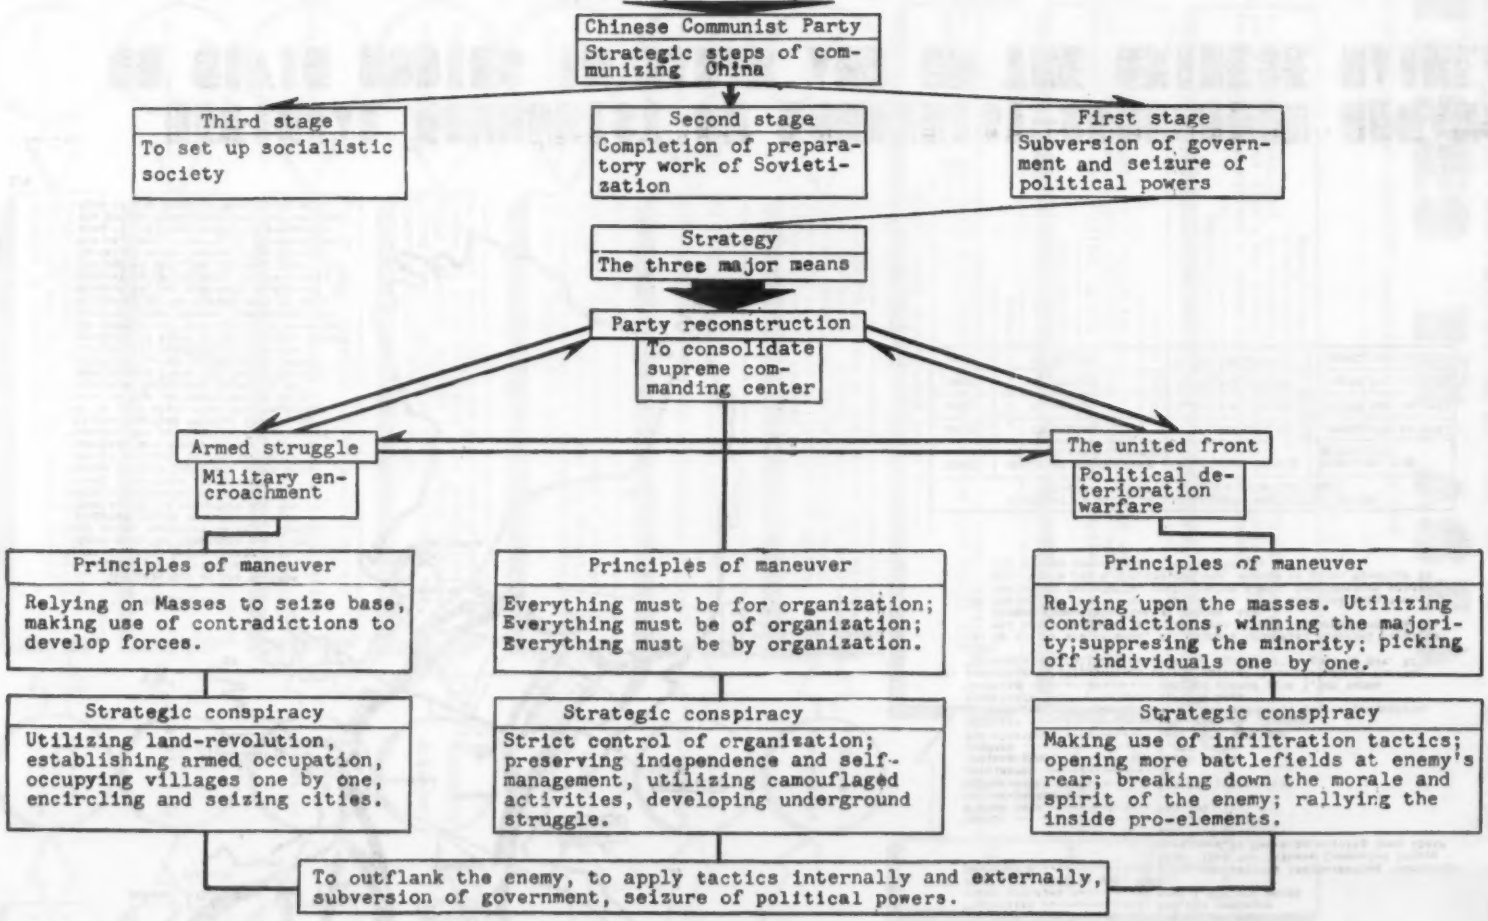
PRINTED BY ASIAN PEOPLES' ANTI-COMMUNIST LEAGUE REPUBLIC OF CHINA 1955





EXPLANATION

1. The chief characteristic of the east expansion policy of Soviet Russia is to seize the government of foreign countries under the cloak of nationalism and democracy on the one hand and the launching of a double-barrelled offensive--cold war and hot war--on the other.
2. According to Lenin's instructions, Soviet Russia, in carrying out its eastward expansion policy, starts from the east and then expands to the west.
3. The strategy of the Chinese Communists to take over the Chinese mainland followed exactly the same pattern set by Soviet Russia.
4. The strategy of both Soveit Russia and the Chinese Communists has become the model which the activities of the communist parties of other Asiatic countries have been following.

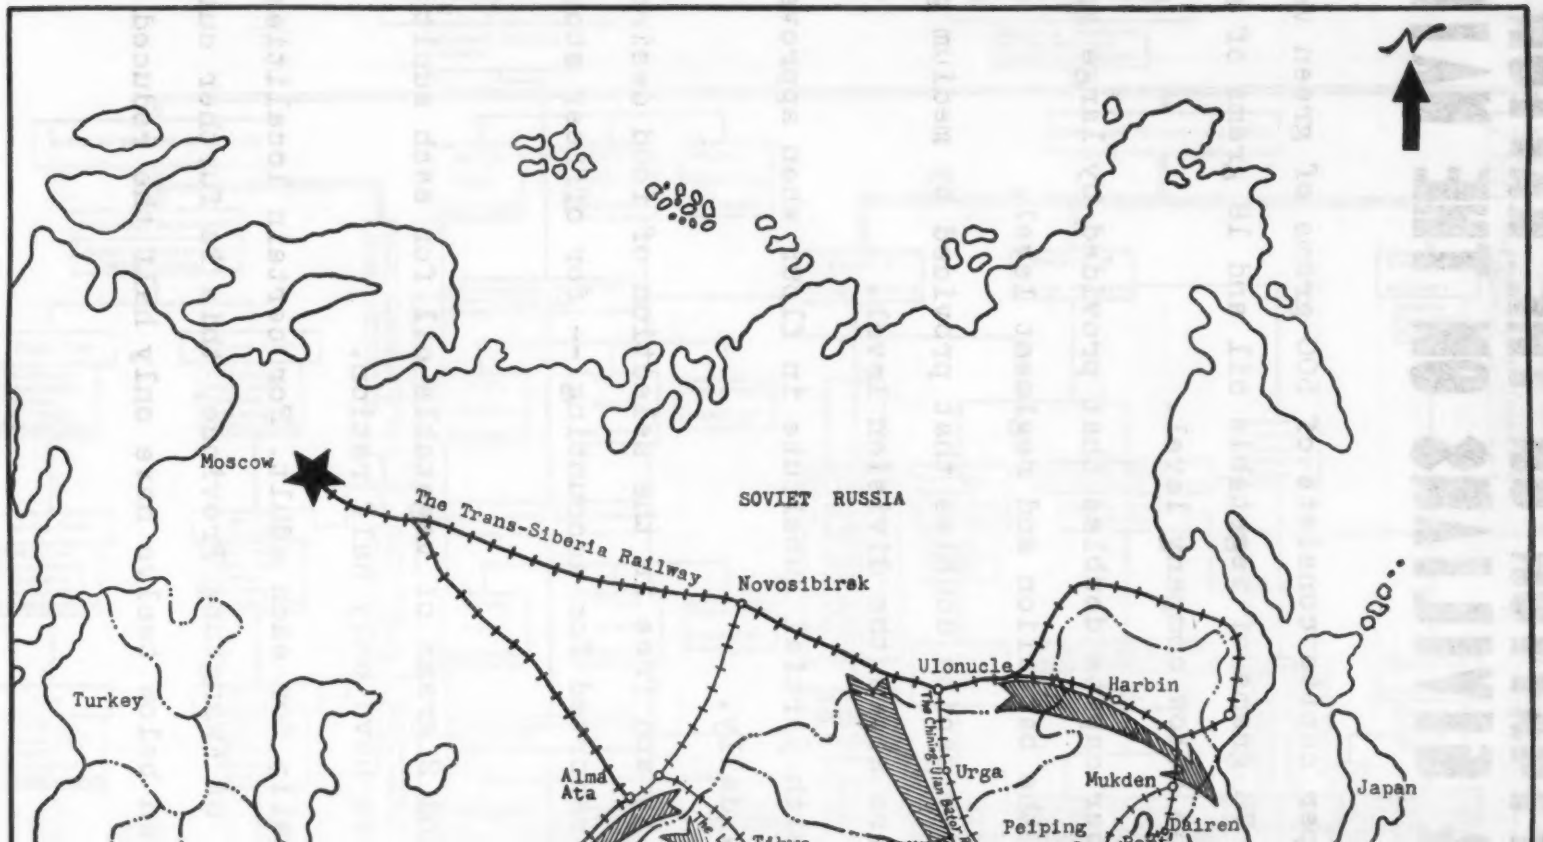
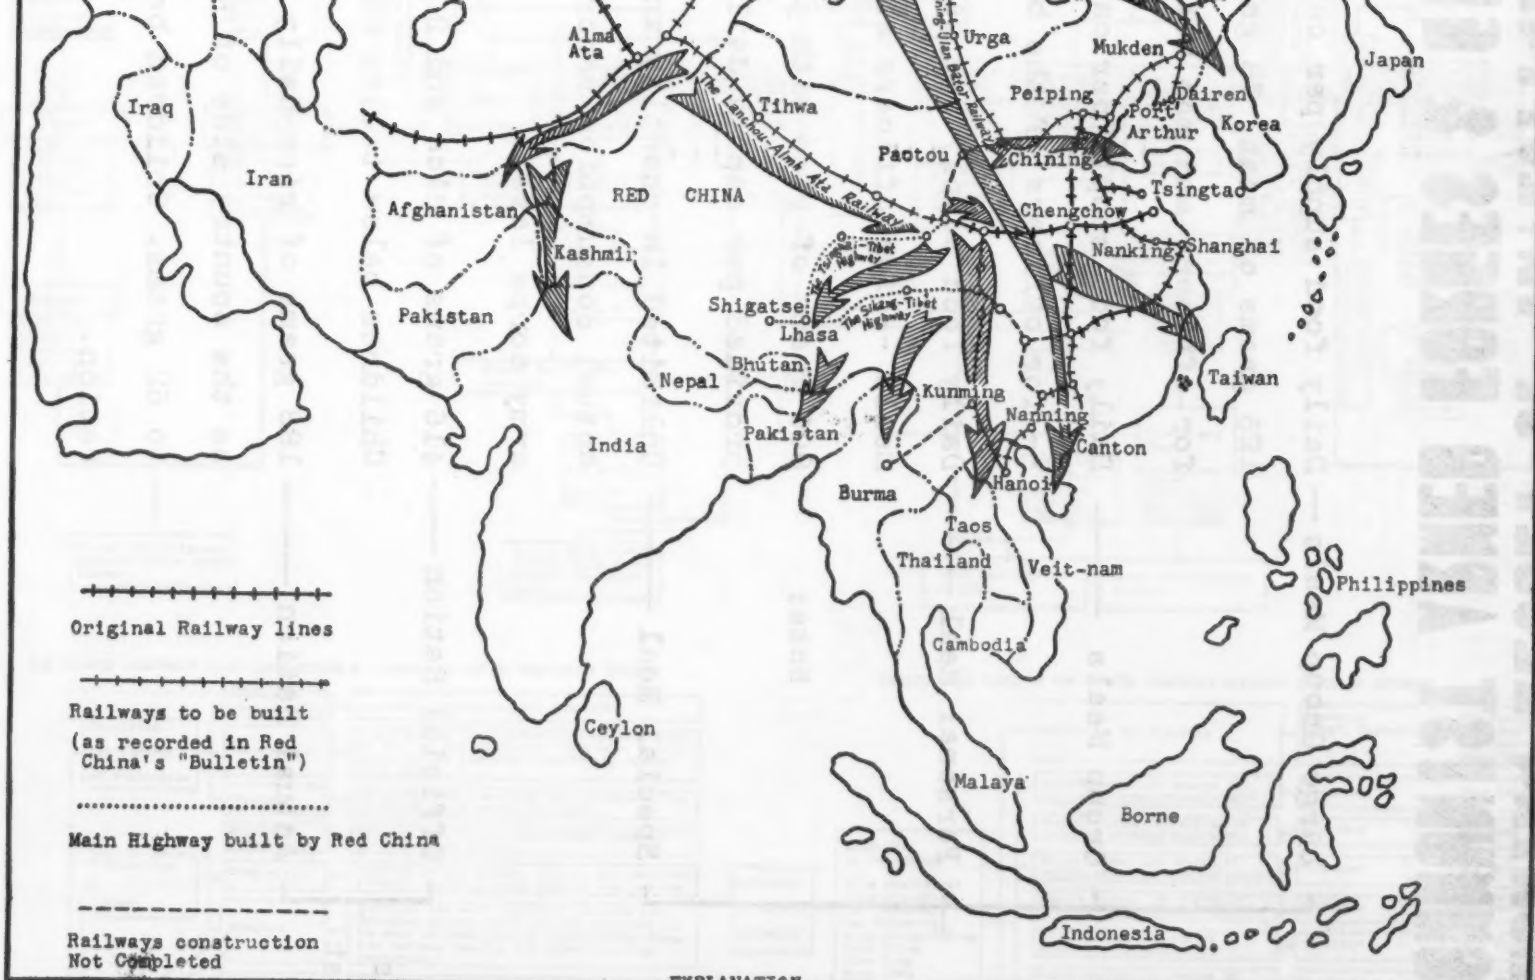
THE CHART SHOWING AGGRESSIVE DESIGN BEHIND THE AGREEMENT OF CONSTRUCTION OF RAILWAYS AND HIGHWAYS BY RED CHINA AND SOVIET RUSSIA

PRINTED BY ASIAN PEOPLES' ANTI-COMMUNIST LEAGUE REPUBLIC OF CHINA 1955





EXPLANATION

1. In order to coordinate with the aggression schedule of Soviet Russia, construction of railroads and highways of strategic importance are now going on at full swing. The important and prominent ones are:-
   (1) The Chi-ning-Ulan Bator (Urga) Railway which links China with the Trans-Siberia Railway.
   (2) The Lanchou-Alma Ata Railway which links China with Central Asia.
   (3) The Tsinghai-Tibet Highway.
   (4) The Sikang-Tibet Highway.

   These highways are built in support of the scanty railway system in the interior and are led right to the thresholds of India and Burma and other Southeast Asia states. Therefore the time of completion of these communication net will probably be set as the zero hour for a full scale southward aggression conducted by Soviet Russia and Red China.

CHART SHOWING THE CHINESE TO CONTROL THE OV

EXPLANATION

The purpose of this chart is to point out how the Chinese Communists control the overseas Chinese and exploit overseas Chinese remittances. It also shows how they turn the overseas Chinese into their tools to infiltrate and subvert the government in the countries where they live. There are overseas Chinese who are under rigid control of the Communist secret service organizations. They have lost their freedom of thinking, of movement and even of disposing of their own property. As a matter of fact, they are the slaves of the Communists and their fifth columnists to engage in subversive activities in foreign countries.

BOGUS 'COMMON PROGRAM'

Protection of the proper interests of the overseas Chinese

BOGUS CONSTITUTION

Protection of the proper rights and interests of the overseas Chinese

BASIC UNDERSTANDING

According to an address made during a meeting of overseas Chinese associations by the magistrate of the Hsping country, Kwangtung province: "Most overseas Chinese residing in capitalist countries, cannot help being contaminated by liberalism, thereby being hardly able to lead any disciplined living. However, one thing must be made clear. Now is the time for people's democratic dictatorship and all counter-revolutionary elements must be suppressed.

EMPLOYMENT OF STRATEGY

Directives issued by the State Administrative Council:

1. Opposition against the forming of exclusive sects, cliques, etc. among the overseas Chinese. Instead, a patriotic, democratic united front should be inaugurated among them.
2. Regarding the land reform to be carried out in the native towns of the overseas Chinese, it should be done smoothly. Such drastic means as 'struggle' should be avoided by all means
3. To attack overseas remittances by all means.
4. To mobilize dependents of overseas Chinese remaining in their native villages, to take part in productive work.
5. To carry out thought reform among the overseas Chinese.
6. To liquidate and punish all anti-revolutionaries found among the returnees from the overseas.
7. To expand propaganda work among the overseas Chinese and seize their leadership.

"PERSECUTING" REGULATIONS

1. Temporary regulations governing the entry and exit of the overseas Chinese.
2. Temporary regulations governing the entry into and exit from Canton, Kwangtung province, of the overseas Chinese.
3. Measures for the disposal of "overseas Chinese" properties and land holdings on the mainland during the land reform move.
4. Measures and resolutions governing the applications for going abroad by "overseas Chinese" landowners.
5. Temporary rulings governing the check of travellers' luggage.
6. The Bank of China regulations governing the deposit of foreign exchange remittances from Chinese abroad.
7. Enforcement of the foreign exchange "express" remittances regulations.
8. Regulations governing the caring for properties of overseas Chinese by the "Overseas Chinese Service Department" of the Bank of China at Amoy.
9. Regulations adopted by the Fukien Provincial People's Bank in facilitating overseas Chinese remittances and servicing them.
10. Regulations adopted by the Bank of China in facilitating overseas Chinese remittances for the purchase of "Victory Bonds"
11. New measures governing the control of overseas Chinese remittances.
12. Temporary measures governing the applications made by overseas Chinese for foreign exchange to meet travelling expenses.
13. Regulations governing the organization of overseas Chinese-financed companies.
14. Measures facilitating the return of overseas Chinese youths for further study.
15. Measures governing the return of overseas Chinese youths for pursuing advanced studies at Canton.
16. Other related regulations.

FACTS OF CHINESE COMMUNIST PERSECUTION OF OVERSEAS CHINESE

EXPLANATION

No matter how sweet are their words, and how reasonable their policy award the overseas seems to be, the Chinese Communists look upon the overseas Chinese as the "Running Dogs of Capitalism" and "Anti-Revolutionaries". Such being the case, the overseas Chinese are the very objects that the Communists have to suppress and liquidate. In view of this fact, all measures taken are against the overseas Chinese. The upper part of the chart explains the Communist policy towards the overseas Chinese and what this policy stands for. The lower part of the chart points out their criminal act against the overseas Chinese.

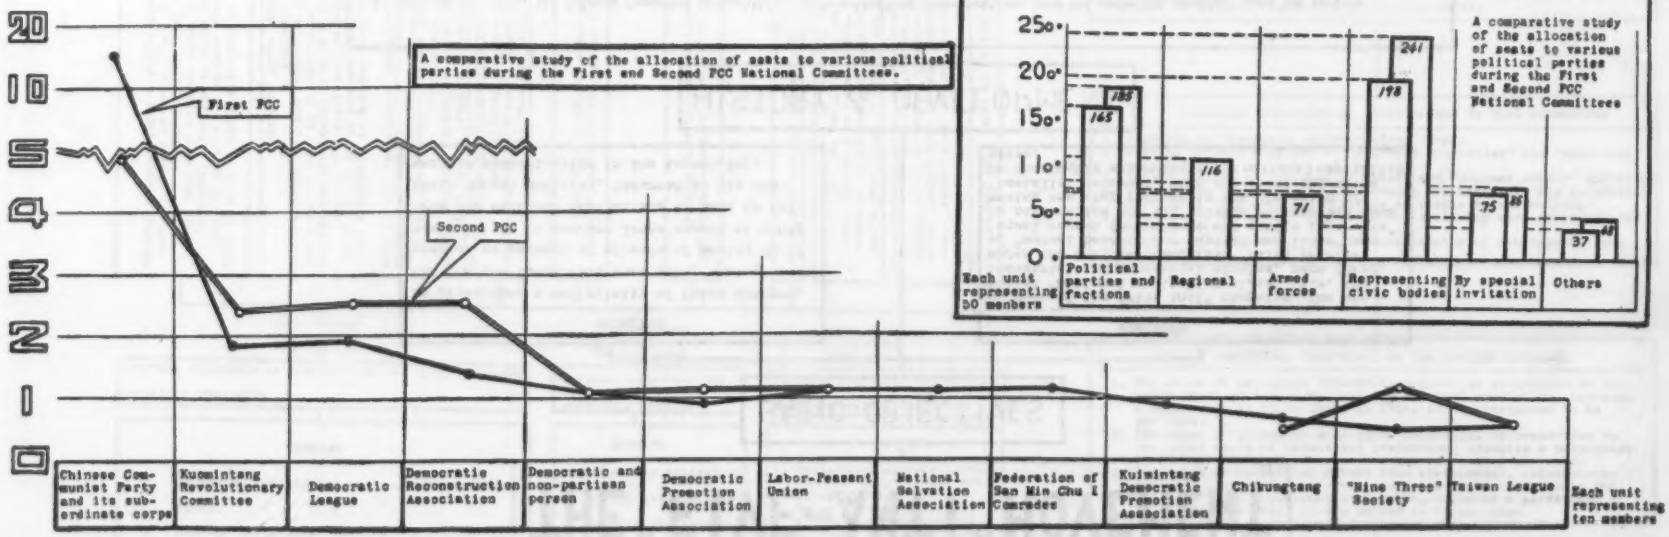
- Pushing through socialist reform for all private-owned industrial and business enterprises.
- Assisting the Communists party to assimilate and annex the minority parties.
- Intensification of 'people's foreign relations' activities and 'international united front' works.
- Responding to Soviet Russia's policies and expanding the 'cold war' offensive.
- Assisting the Chinese Communists infiltration into Taiwan.
- Urging all political factions and civic groups to carry out 'self-reform'.
- Organizing members to participate in such campaigns as 'land reform' 'suppression of oppositions', 'Five Anti', etc.
- Helping Communist authorities promote the 'Resist-America and Aid-Korea' campaign and the 'peace' movement.
- Unity of all tribes to implement the 'new democracy'.
- Examination of all government resolutions and making suggestions.
- Mobilization of the masses to carry out all government policies and regulations.

OBJECTIVES

- The Chinese Communists' ultimate aim comprises the complete liquidation of all minority parties.
- Minority parties are divided and disintegrated.
- PCC members are used as accomplices in the implementation of Communist tyranny.
- Dictatorship is covered up under the disguise of 'democracy'



EXPLANATION

This chart has the following contents:

1. Taking full advantage of the united front, the Chinese Communist Party occupied the Chinese mainland. This was fully expressed in the people's Political Consultative Conference.
2. Under the false pretenses of democracy, and through the medium of the People's Political Consultative Conference, the Communists put the one-party dictatorship into practice.

CHART SHOWING THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS' "FIVE-ANTI" MOVEMENT

THE "FIVE-ANTI" MOVEMENT

BASIC OBJECTIVES

NEGATIVE

By presenting a mutiplicity of false charges, the Chinese Communists were able, through such excuses as payment of arrears of making up of tax evasions to extract large amount of money from the national capitalists to make up for their budget deficits, incurred by the Communists, participation in the Korean War.

POSITIVE

By mean of the "Five Anti" campaign, the so-called "national capitalist class", i.e. the industrial and commercial circles, were fored, under the Chinese Communists' false promises of "mutual benefit for capital and labor" and "equal regard for private and public interests" to nationalize the big private enterprises thus moving one step further in the direction of "Socialist economy", with the final objective to thoroughly exterminate the national capitalist class.

HISTORY & DEVELOPMENT

1. During Dec. 1951, the Chinese Communist authorities, while conducting investigations into the austerity campaign among the various government offices and army units, discovered the universal corruption prevalent among the Communist cadres. Thus, the "Three Anti" movement was launched on Dec. 10, the same year. However, the use of bribes and other offenses on the part of the industrialists and businessmen was blamed as a scapegoat for such corruption. The Communists then started a series of "spontaneous" examinations among the industrial and business circles in the various big cities. On Dec. 24, the joint Chamber of Industry and Commerce at Tsingtao, Shantung province, called a meeting of representatives of the industrialists and businessmen and embarked upon a "Four Anti" campaign, against big profits, bribery practices, squandering and tax evasion thus marking the beginning of the "5 Anti" movement.

2. On Jan. 13, 1952, during a "new knowledge forum", convoked at Peiping by the bogus Democratic Reconstruction Association, representing industrial and trade interests, Huang Yen-pei, one of the Association leaders, offered a part of "Five Don't's" to the businessmen and industrialists present at the conference. The Five "dont's" covered bribery, tax evasion, stealing of state property, doing insufficient work and using inferior material, and divulging state economic information. Finding the word "dont" rather negative, the Communist authorities consequently changed it into "Five Anti" and formally launched the movement universally on the Chinese mainland.

3. During the movement's initial stage, the Peiping authorities agreed to the settingup of a number of "reception centers" and "open confession stations" by the joint Chamber of Industry and Commerce of various cities for open confessions and mutual accusations among the members themselves. However the Communists later found them to be "covering things up" and soon had them abolished. Instead, the following measures were adopted:

   (1) Issues should not be settled privately. Open confessions should be directly made with the government and written confessions be simultaneously submitted;

   (2) With the "Five Anti" movement under way, no winding up of business, no dismissal of employees and no advanced settlement of accounts were allowed. Factory workers, shop employees, accountants and clerks should not be coaxed or compelled into any "mutual benefit alliances" with the bribed Communist cadres;

(2) With the "Five Anti" movement under way, no winding up of business, no dismissal of employees and no advanced settlement of accounts were allowed. Factory workers, shop employees, accountants and clerks should not be coaxed or compelled into any "mutual benefit alliances" with the bribed Communist cadres;

(3) No absences or leaves, including those home visits during the New Year days, were to be granted to the managers, assistant managers and other responsible heads of all private-owned factories or shops;

(4) To encourage accusations by factory hands and shop employees, the Communist authorities further provided the following regulations: a) All "profits", "share dividends", "extra allowances" and "extra bonus", hitherto allocated among the factory hands, shop clerks and employees by their employers, were to be retained in the former's possession. The Communist government would not ask them to pay them back, and b) those who lost their jobs as a result of accusing their employers would be given employment through the help of the Communist authorities.

4. With the "Five Anti" campaign in full swing, all shop clerks, labor union members, factory hands and employees arrayed themselves at the front line while reserves in the rear comprised housewives, under the control of the Communist "Democratic Women's League, adolescent and child members of the bogus "New Democracy Youth Corps" and Communist cadres who had successfully infiltrated into the joint chambers of Industry and Commerce. The converged on the industrialists and businessmen from all sides. Their slogan said "never stop until complete victory is achieved." Meanwhile, a number of fantastic organizations, such as "tiger-killing teams" "fighting corps" and "frontline groups" emerged everywhere. All big cities on the Chinese mainland were engulfed by the angry tides of "open confession" and "settling of issues". Heads of business or industrial concerns, having faced enough "challenges" raised by employees in their shops or plants, had to undergo another ordeal of cross-questionings by their wives and children upon returning home. (For, it had now become a fashion for wives to investigate into their husbands' sources of incomes) Consequently for the hapless merchants and factory owners, there was absolutely no way out.

5. The "Five Anti" campaign was officially inaugurated on Feb. 5, 1952. The various cities and metropolises planned their own timetable, according to the lengths of time required for the local preparatory work. Take Shanghai, for instance. The initial stage, called the "trial period for emphasis", was fixed for the last ten days of March, the same year. The second phase for full-scale practice followed from April 1 to April 12. The third stage was begun on April 20, "for pressing the enemies further after winning the initial round." The last or the fourth round was not started until the first days of May when emphasis was laid upon work disposal and taking the lead in productive enterprises. The campaign, duly divided into various stages, was fully launched in other cities in different times. While, the "Five Anti" movement was in principle brought to a close around May 31, sums to be repaid, either in the form of tax arrears or fines imposed upon the merchants or factory owners, were not completely handed even by the end of 1952.

RESULTS

AN ESTIMATED JMP30 TRILLION WORTH OF PRIVATE PROPERTIES WERE EXTORTED FROM THE PEOPLE.

1. Based upon a report made by the puppet mayor of Peiping, Peng Chen, in April, 1952 during the "Five Anti" campaign, of a total of 50,000 business and industrial concerns in Peiping, only some 5,000 (one tenth of the total) were found to be law-abiding. Among the rest of 45,000 concerns, a) 1,721 operating at illegal profits of over JMP100,000,000, averaged some JMP one billion each. The total sum amounting to JMP1,721,000,000,000, should be entirely returned to the government. b) 770 were charged with serious offenses or accused of being completely illegal. Their incomes resulting from illegal practices were stimated at JMP50,000,000 each. Thus the sum total to be returned to the government amounted to JMP23,370,000,000. c) another 12,600 were considered as half law-abiding and half law-breaking. Consequently, 50 per cent of their illegal profits, a sum of JMP31,250,000,000, averaging some JMP five million each was claimed by the Communist authorities: Putting the three together, the puppet Peiping regime thus succeeded in extracting no less than JMP1,775,600,000,000 out of the people's coffer.

2. During the "Five Anti" campaign, the main targets of Communist extortion were in the nine metropolises of Shanghai, Tientsin, Peiping, Canton, Chungking, Hankow, Mukden, Nanking and Sian, and also in a number of smaller cities. In all, a total of 467,989 industrialists and businessmen were affected. Judging from the fact that Peiping where JMP1,775,600,000,000 were extracted from 45,000 concerns alone, (excluding the amount of fines), it should not be difficult for the Communists to net over JMP16,832,000,000,000 from the nine metropolises and another JMP one trillion from the smaller cities. Thus, altogether the Communists might have robbed JMP 18 trillions from people during the "Five Anti" campaign. These, plus the repayment of tax arrears and fines due up to the end of 1952 which amounted to JMP 3 trillion, the Peiping regime should be able to realize JMP 30 trillion. This sum, according to the exchange rate prevalent ther, was equivalent to over US$1,330,000,000.

OVER 460,000 PRIVATE BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES WERE AFFECTED.

1. During the "Five Anti"campaign the Chinese Communists classified the mainland's private business and industrial concerns into the following five categories: a) law-abiding units, b) fundamentally law-abiding units, c) half-law-abiding and half law-breaking units, d) those charged with serious offenses and e)"completely illegal" units. Of the five, those classified under the last two categories bore the most brunt of the extortion. Next came the half-half setups. As to the fundamentally law-abiding concerns, the Communist authorities considered them as largely law-abiding but charged with occasional illegal practices, and therefore due punishment was meted out for them. Only the fully law-abiding units were left intact but they numbered only one-tenth of the total of shops and factories on the Chinese mainland.

2. According to available information the number of private business and industrial concerns suffered under the "Five Anti" purge totalled 467,989. Their breakdown is as follows:

Shanghai	147,060 units
Tientsin	52,200 units
Peiping	45,000 units
Canton	39,280 units
Chungking	37,800 units
Hankow-Wuchang-Hanyang area	36,000 units
Mukden	35,300 units
Nanking	23,820 units
Sian	13,129 units
Other smaller	41,000 units

EXPRANATION

The Five Anti Movement was deviced to get rid of the national capitalists (business-men and industrialists). It squeezed them flat by the "percepts" as detailer in the "New Democracy". By uprooting the national capitalists, all undertakings formerly belonging to them will automatically become State enterprises. This will pave the way towards "Socialistic Economy".

ANALYSIS OF THE CHINESE COMMUNIST "GENERAL LINE FOR THE TRANSITIONAL PERIOD" moving toward state capitalism

Progress

Up to the end of 1954

- Private business
- Private industries

1. The amount of wholesale business done by these comprised less than 20 per cent of the main-land's total worth in wholesale dealings.
2. Their retail worth in wholesale dealings comprised less than 50 per cent in the total retail business.
3. Their foreign trade accounted only 3 per cent in the Peiping regime's total worth of foreign trade.

Forms of organization

- Business
  - 1. Primary — Wholesale purchase and retail
  - 2. Secondary — Agents in wholesale, purchase supply and distribution;
  - 3. Higher — Joint public-private undertakings.
- Industries
  - 1. Primary — purchase and supply;
  - 2. Secondary — processing, accepting orders, planned purchase and distribution;
  - 3. Higher — Joint private-public undertakings.

1. Joint-public-private enterprises totaled more than 2,000.
2. Among them, those dealing in processing and accepting orders occupied 80.4% of the total worth of mainland industrial production.
3. The mainland's private industrial enterprises occupied a percentage of 29 only in the total worth of private-owned and government-operated industries combined.

The percentage daily dwindled.

Objective

Private ownership by capitalists was to be replaced by state ownership

RESULTS

1. Withdrawal of capital and squandering of funds.
2. Passive resistance, sabotage, and quitting business or production;
3. Wrecking productive equipment, sabotaging markets and management;
4. Wrecking Communist-owned business firms and cooperatives.

from the forming of cooperatives to collectivization

Progress

At the end of 1954, membership of various handicraft production cooperatives on the mainland amounted to more than 910,000 people.

Forms of organization

handicraft production groups, handicraft, products supply and distribution centers, handicraft production cooperatives.

Objective

Private ownership was replaced by collective ownership Results

RESULTS

1. Resistance against joining cooperatives;
2. Lowering of "productive moral;
3. Reluctance to admit apprentices;
4. Sabotage of cooperatives.

the forming of cooperatives to collectivization gradual development of mutual help

Three kinds of cooperation

- Cooperation of Credits
  - Together with farm loans, controlling credits in rural areas.
- Cooperation of production
  - Progress
    - Up to the Spring of 1955, some 10,000,000 agricultural production cooperatives were formed; such groups were expected to cover one half of all peasant families on the mainland by 1957
  - Forms of organization
    - temporary "mutual help groups" —— permanent "mutual help groups" —— agricultural production cooperatives —— collective farms
- Cooperation of supply and distribution
  - Slow liquidation of rural free markets

Objective

Private ownership was changed into collective ownership

RESULTS

1. Resistance against joining "mutual help" groups and cooperatives;
2. Reluctance to sell farm products to Communists;
3. Quitting farm production and large influx into the cities;
4. Setting fire to forests, riots and assassination of Communist cadres;
5. Sabotages and strikes on farms and destruction of farm;
6. Refusal to turn in government-requisitioned grains and destruction of barns.

Basic Functions for the first Five-Year Plan. (beginning 1953)

All major efforts were concentrated for the development of national defense industries, with main emphasis upon the 156 categories either recently inaugurated or reorganized through Soviet assistance

PRINCIPAL DIFFICULTIES

1. weak foundation of the industries;
2. backward techniques;
3. lack of adequate information concerning industrial resources;
4. insufficient working capital;
5. lack of staff worker and
6. low cultural level.

The people were ordered to cut down their bare subsistence in an effort to support the reconstruction projects.

IMPORTANT GOVERNMENTAL UNDERTAKINGS IN THIS CONNECTION

1. Floating of "economic reconstruction" bonds;
2. Pushing through a series of "increase-production" and "austerity" competitions;
3. Implementation of "planned purchase" and "planned supply" policies;
4. Exportation of foodstuffs in exchange for machinery and industrial equipment, thus reducing millions of people to starvation;
5. Stepping up technical education and training more personnel for reconstruction
6. Tightening labor discipline and suppression of sabotage and subversion.

PRESENT INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS ON THE CHINESE MAINLAND

1. The value of mainlands industrial output, in proportion to the total worth of industrial and agricultural production, occupied a percentage of 17 in 1949. In 1954, it was increased to 33 per cent.
2. The value of output of productive materials, in proportion to the total worth of industrial production, occupied a percentage of 28.0 in 1949. In 1954, it was raised to 42.3 per cent.
3. The value of industrial output from state-owned, cooperative-run and joint public-private industries, in proportion to the total worth of industrial production, occupied a percentage of 37 in 1949. In 1954, it was raised to 71 per cent.

RESULTS

1. Industries for the production of people's daily necessities were forced to deteriorate;
2. Livelihood of the mainland people became worse by everyday.

EXPLANATION

The taxes collected from State enterprises climb up year by year while taxes on other items are declining sharply. This has long been the Communist's propaganda as a proof of "alleviating people's burden". However, the increase is attained at the heavy expense of private enterprises which have been crushed. Although other taxes indicate a decline, the actual amount is increased. For example, The taxes collected in 1953 only amounted to JMP116,485,200,000,000 (dquivalent to US$4,901,070,000) yet in 1954, it increased to JKP135,596,700,000,000 (equivalent to US$5,728,590,000). This proves the fact that Red China's extortion is intensified year by year, and it needs no Solomon to unmask the trick of the figures.

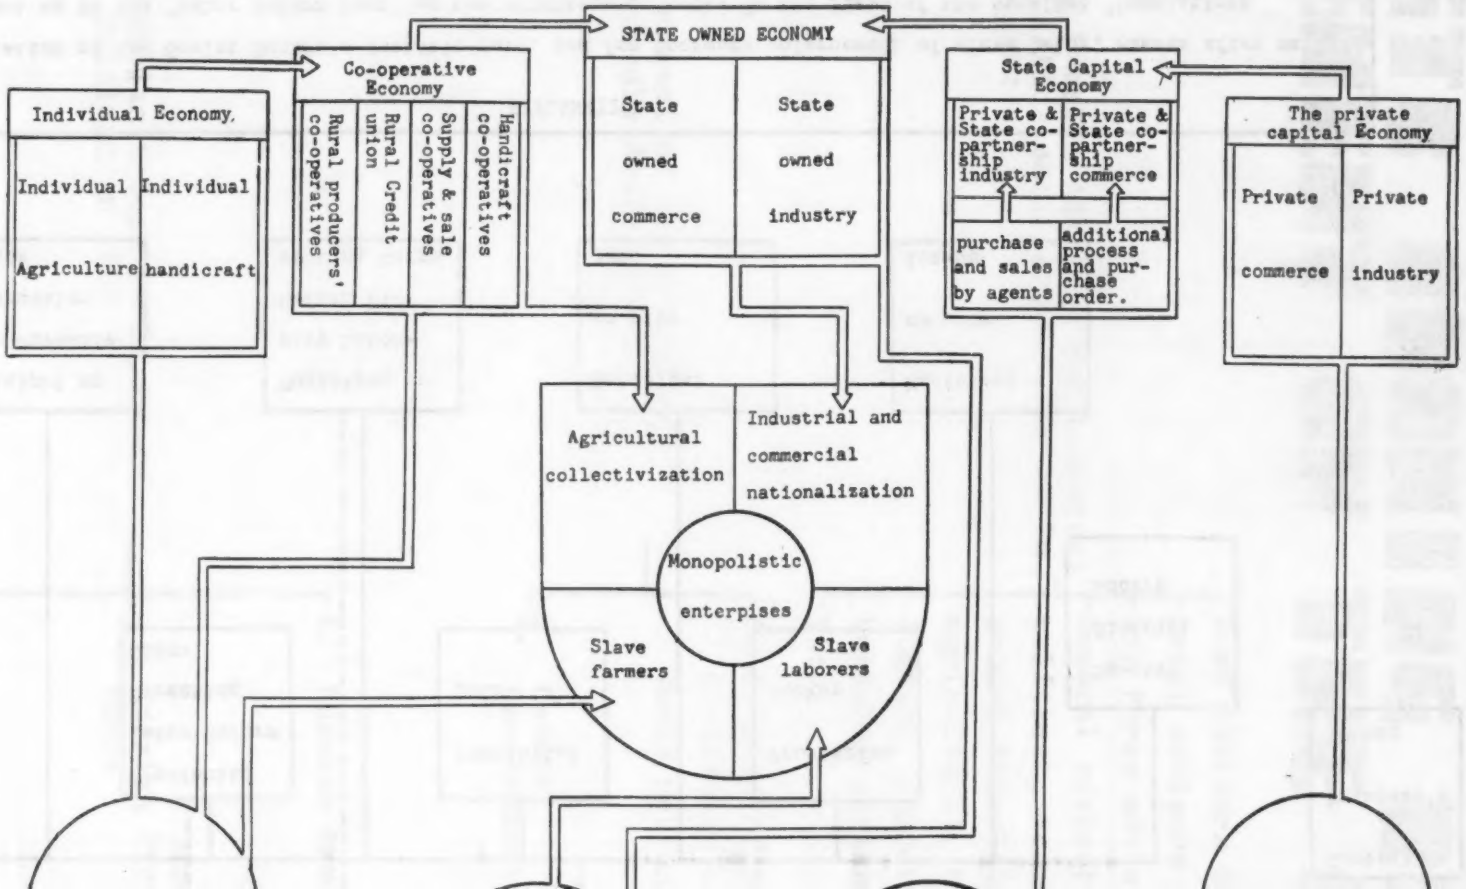
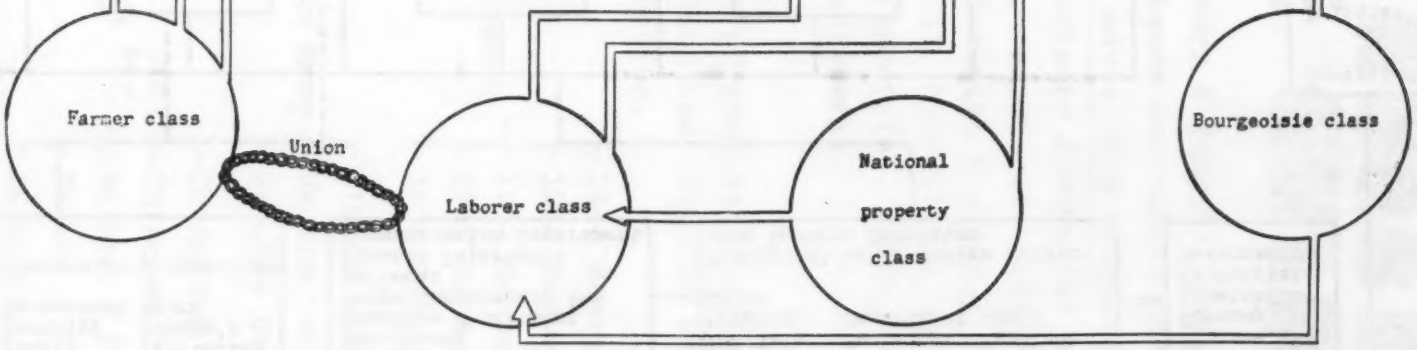
THE CHART SHOWING THE EVOLUTION OF RED CHINA'S FINANCIAL & ECONOMIC POLICIES

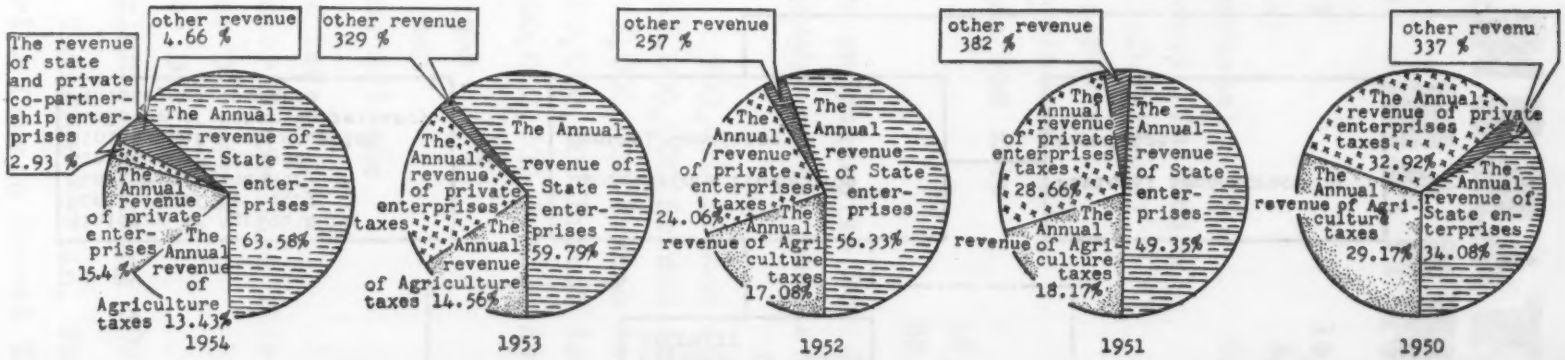
PRINTED BY ASIAN PEOPLES' ANTI-COMMUNIST LEAGUE REPUBLIC OF CHINA 1955

Changing from Co-existence of five Categories of Economy into proletarian monopoly.
Changing from Alliance of four main classes of people into two kinds of slaves.





A review of the evolution of Red China's Financial and Economic policies from its revenue in the last five years



EXPLANATION

1. Red China's financial and economic policies are based on the so-called "New Democracy" which advocates co-existence of five categories of economy and also for alliance of four main classes of people, with a view to coax the people and to win their support. Then, in the name of "Social reform", private and national capitalist enterprises are turned into State ownership while individual enterprises are absorbed into State owned co-operatives. The final targets are to nationalize industry and commerce and to enforce collective farms.
2. A review of Red China's revenue in the last five years reveals that the annual income of State enterprises increased 34.08% of the total national income in 1950 to 63.5% of the total national income in 1954. On the contrary, taxes levied on private undertakings show a drop from 32.92% to 15.4%. This proves that during the last five years, the state enterprises have almost doubled in productivity while private undertakings have shrunk more than a half, a fact which obviously indicates that the latter will gradually go out of existence.

EXPLANATION

In imitation of the Soviet Russia's despotic rule, and for thorough enforcement of slave labor, masses after masses were pent up in the "Labor Reform Camp" on the slightest offense. In the light of the socalled "Regulations governing Labor Reform" issued by the bogus State Council on 26 Aug. 1954, it is estimated that such kind of labor camps spreaded over 2,000 cities and towns, The bogus Minister of Security, Lo Jui Ch'ing disclosed that Ch'ing Ho Farm in Peking alone, 5,384 prisoners underwent reform in four years, of which 1,450 remained in the camp by their own will. Although there has been no disclosure of the actual number of prisoners, it is pretty sure that the figure will not run below those released. In other cities, besides working in the camp, the prisoners are goaded to dig rivers, lay railroad tracks, cut timbers and build houses etc. It is obvious that the total figure is enormous.

UNIST LEAGUE REPUBLIC OF CHINA 1955

CHART SHOWING FOOD SCARCITY IN COMMUNIST-CONTROLLED AREAS

PRINTED BY ASIAN PEOPLES' ANTI-COMMUNIST LEAGUE REPUBLIC OF CHINA 1955.

THE CAUSES BRINGING ABOUT FOOD SCARCITY

NATURAL CATASTROPHE

1. Locust or insect troubles: in the first half of 1951, the plague of destructive insects spreads almost over all the agricultural area on the mainland. According to the report made by Comminist Minister of Agriculture Lee Hsu-cheng, the farmers engaged in prevention from insect troubles almost wasted 80,000,000 working days, and influence upon the reduction of food production is beyond description.
2. Drought: As disclosed by the Communist paper South China Daily in May of 1954, in early spring, the drought caused fissures on all the fields in the Central and Southern provinces on the mainland, and consequently the cultivated land has become barren by thousands of miles. The calamity was said to be the gravest in the last few decades.
3. Snow damage: For example, in December of 1954, many provinces on the mainland, such as Anhui, Hupei, Hunan, Kiangsu and Kiangsi, were all ravaged repeatedly by heavy snow, and as a result most of the agricultural products were badly damaged. The Communist authorities of the "Central and Southern China Bureau" called for urgent measures to be taken for relief work.
4. Flood: In the summer of 1954, many of the provinces on the mainland were deluged with flood, which was almost unprecedented for the last hundred years. According to the Communist China News Service, the flooded area covered ten per cent of the total cultivated land (equals to 205,500,000 odd mou). And according to the statistical data disclosed by the Production Bureau of the Ministry of Agriculture, the food production on the mainland in 1954 reduced by 67.9 billion catties.

MAN-MADE CAUSES

1. Under various regulations that were made in the name of science to reduce the quantity of civilian food consumption, the Chinese Communists squeezed large quantity of food products out of the areas which had already suffered from food shortage, for exporting abroad to exchange for atrategic materials. For example, under the Agreement concluded between the Chinese Communists and the Government of Ceylon in October of 1954, the former sold rice to the latter as much as 270,000 metric tons in quantity.
2. Following the example of Soviet Russia's "Surplus Food Requisition System", the Chinese Communists concentrated all the surplus food products from civilians as a preparation for material mobilization in case of an aggressive war. But the civilians, under the stimulus of Communist squeeze brought about intentionally a large quantity of waste and consumption as a psychological revenge.
3. As a result of mismanagement of Communist cadres, the food stuffs that were squeezed and stored in barns were badly damaged by insects, birds and rats, or transmuted into trash due to long time of preservation.
4. As a consequence of the unprecedented change brought about by the "Land reform" as well as the Communist squeeze, the life of the people was engulfed into a most wretched plight, which influenced greatly their working apirit and the reduction of food production.

brought about by the "Land reform" as well as the Communist squeeze, the life of the people was engulfed into a most wretched plight, which influenced greatly their working spirit and the reduction of food production.

CONSEQUENCES OF FOOD SCARCITY	MEASURES TO DEAL WITH FOOD SCARCITY	THE ACTUAL CONDITIONS OF FOOD SCARCITY
1. Since the happening of food scarcity, the rural economy has persistently become depressing and people's pauperism and Communists' squeeze have constitute a vicious circle which provides an essential factor in bringing about the general bankruptcy of finance under the Communist regime. 2. In consequence of the concentration policy of food production, many of the Communist cadres have sunk in the depth of vices, such as large quantity of waste and corruption, which in turn have gradually spoiled the Communist organization and have driven the Communist themselves into self-destruction. 3. So long as the Communists continue to carry out to the full their starvation policy, the people on the mainland is bound to be rallied up and fight their way out with their back to the wall. Whith the result, the people's anti-Communist forces on the mainland will be shaped eventually into a great tide all over the country.	1. Forcible increase in food production: to drive the farmer into hard labor under undernourishment. 2. Limitation of food consumption: to make the farmer to suffer from starvation, thus leaving themselves at the mercy of the Communists 3. Concentrated control: to put food products all over the country under the control of the Communists, thus making the ruling class live like lords and the peasants like slaves.	1. As reported in 1953 by the Communist paper People's Daily, the food production met with bad harvest almost every year. So far as 1954 is concerned, the total capacity in food production limited to 330 billion catties only, and the population suffering from famine reached as high as more than two hundred millions. 2. Since the unprecedented inundation on the mainland in 1954, the food scarcity in the Communist-controlled area has become now more serious than before. At a rough estimate, the population suffering from starvation is at least beyond two hundred and fifty millions. 3. According to the latest reports from Communist sources, "the peasant refugees in Tung-kwang Hsien of Hopei province had saved for their country 40,800 catties of food as a result of using weed as substitute for food." This may serve as a sound proof that the food scarcity on the Communist-conrolled mainland has reached the apex in China's history.

EXPLANATION

In consequence of natural calamities and export of large amount of foodstuffs in exchange for strategic materials, food shortage on the mainland has reached a critical stage. According to available statistics, 250,000,000 people have been short of foodstuff since the flood of last year. In spite of the fact that the Red Regime is exerting every effort to increase agricultural products and at the same time exercises rigid control over supply of foodstuffs to minimize the consumption, the grave situation is an important factor that leads the people to revolution overthrowing bogus regime

EDUCATION

To divide the people into "working, peasant and capitalist" classes to create hatred, and to arouse encourage "revolution and revenge"

To carry on " Anti-America and help Chosan", "protect-the-family and defend-the-country" and "safguard-internationalism" propaganda before the outbreak of the Korean war.

To promote education in the army on general political knowledge and new democracy, and to set up a long-distant political objective through fabrication of facts and deception of officers and men.

The main teaching material includes: the Three Principal Pledges, Ten Rules, Three Principal Disciplines, Eight Points for Attention, No Advance with Respect to Three Matters and No Retreat in Face of Five Matters.

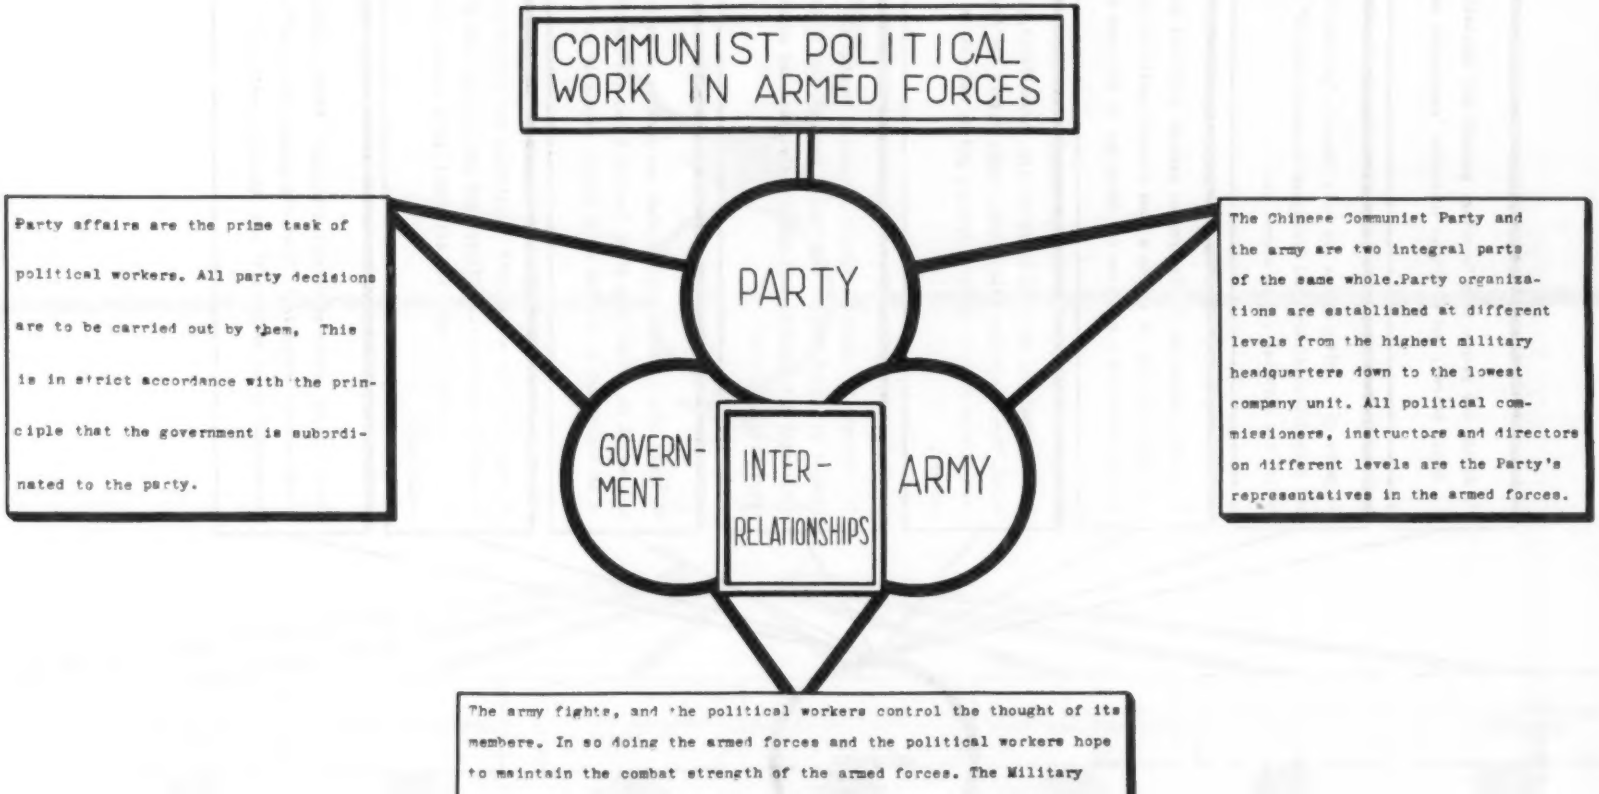
To cultivate by example a spirit of heroism through the payment of respect to "model heroes" and "combat heroes", and to encourage mutual challenges and competition between individuals and units in rendering "meritorious service".

To teach both officers and men that one depends on one's parents while at home but on mutual help after leaving home, and that the ability of an individual is limited while mutual resources are boundless.

To organize clubs and promote educational and recreational activities in order to animate the officers and men. In the case of troops on the march, they should talk, and all armed units should be active and not remain mute.

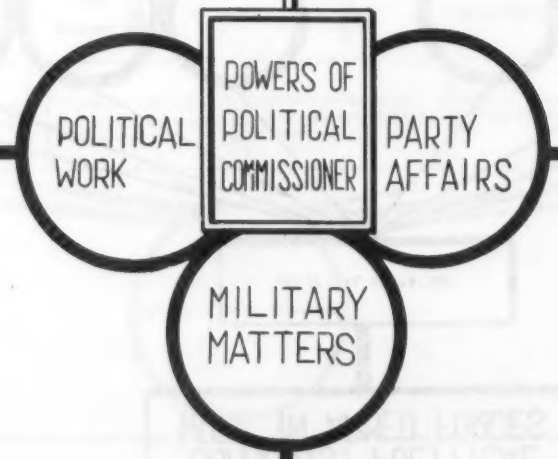
The principal points of education include, "defense-education" "support-the-government education", "love-the-people education" as well as "reexamination of daily life" and "struggle meetings."

CHART ILLUSTRATING THE CHINESE COMMUNIST POLITICAL WORK IN ARMED FORCES



The army fights, and the political workers control the thought of its members. In so doing the armed forces and the political workers hope to maintain the combat strength of the armed forces. The Military officers are responsible for military affairs, and they are, in time of peace, under the direction and assistance of the political workers to expand their political activities. The political workers are responsible for political affairs, and they take part in the non-military administration. In time of war they are under the direction and assistance of the military officers to help accomplish the combat duties.

The political workers are empowered to give political orders, to preside over all political meetings and to decide on the promotion, transfer, commendation or punishment of the political workers, to enforce "revolutionary" laws and suppress insubordination.



The political workers check and review all the resolutions passed by the party committees on the same or lower levels. They are empowered to dissolve any party committee considered as unreliable, and to direct and plan the party's activities in the areas under the army's occupation.

The political workers supervise all military movements and take part in drafting all plans relating to combat operation, mobilization, education and discipline; in the issuance and countersigning of decrees. They also take part in the selection, inspection and review of the work of all military personnel on all levels, review the promotion, transfer, commendation or punishment of all military officers and take over the duties of the commander in case of the latter's incapacity through death or being injured.

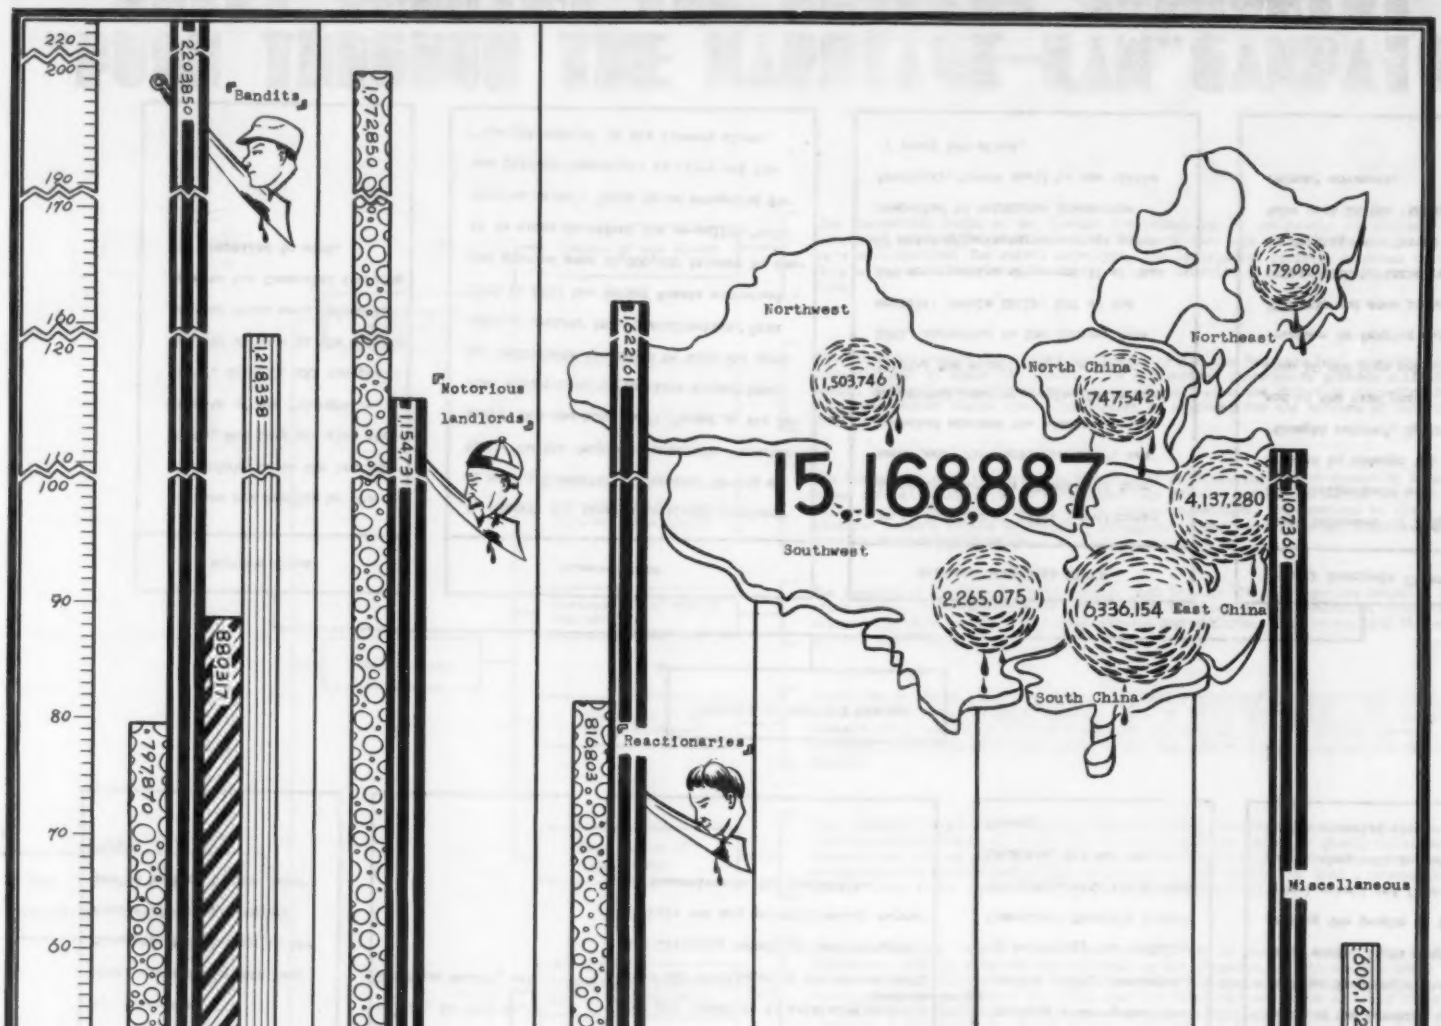
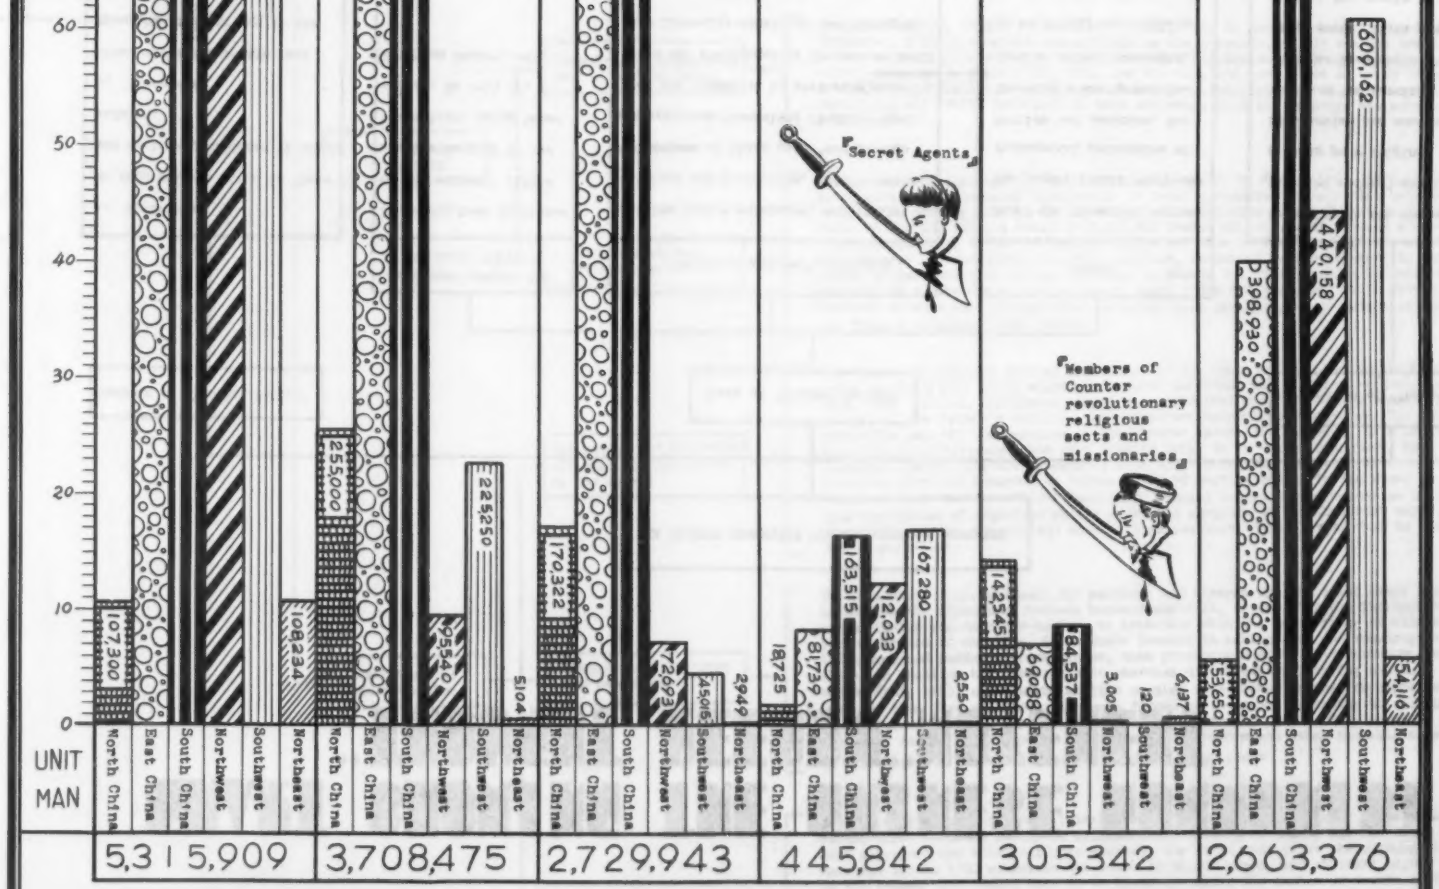
CHART ILLUSTRATING THE CHINESE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN TO SUPPRESS "COUNTER-REVOLUTIONARIES"





EXPLANATIONS

Since their seizure of the mainland the Chinese Communists have been striving to consolidate the puppet regime by recourse to indiscriminate killing of the people unwilling to toe the line. In February, 1951, during the Korean war, they further began a campaign to suppress the so-called "counter-revolutionaries" and promulgated a set of regulations for the punishment of the people so unjustly called. According to investigations, more than 15,168,800 people have been wiped out since the campaign began.

give up your original thought of non-Marxism and non-Leninism, and to learn the Marxism, Leninism, and Mao Tse-tung's theroy". In other words, it is aiming at depriving the people of their national spirit and free-will, and making them both in body and in soul the Soviet slaves.

TARGETS OF "THOUGHT REFORM"

Workers Class

Workers are reputed by the Communists to be the leading class, but they are also the targets of the "thought reform". In 1953, all the productive workers in the eastern part of China were forced to receive the Communist training and compelled to work.

Farmers Class

To educate the farmers is always considered by the Communist a headache. In his article "On the People's Democratic Dictatorship," Mao Tse-tung said: "Based on the Soviet experience, it requires a long time and deliberate technique to turn the agriculture society into socialization." From 1929 to 1933 the Soviet Russia sentenced and starved some 10,000,000 farmers to death in order to effect the so-called "collective farms". There is no exception for the Chinese Communists to carry out the "thought reform" in the farmers class.

National Bourgeois Class

Up to December of 1951, a nationwide struggle, known as "Three-Anti Movement",and "Five-Anti Movement", was launched against the commercial and industrial leading people. Let's take Peiping for example. By the end of 1951, according to the Chinese Communists' People Daily, 107 of the 270 construction shops and 35 of the 69 automobile materials shops were compelled to criticise themselves. Averagely, there would be one victim of every two shops.

Small Bourgeois Class

Since September of 1951, the intellectuals were ordered to undergo the "thought reform". By the end of the same year, some 10,000 high school teachers in Peiping and Tientsin and some 10,400 primary school teachers in Peiping were forced to take part in the "thought reform" movement.

CHART SHOWING THE CHINESE COMMUNIST "PUSH THROUGH THE MARRIAGE-LAW" CAMPAIGN

- Methods of leadership
  - Organization leadership and thought guidance
    - -laws" campaign on January 16, 1953, and the people's government ... a similar organization in addition to opening training classes in various places and mobilizing all youths to engage in this movement, that the campaign has achieved some progress.
  - Form and methods of mobilization
    - During the "push through the marriage-laws" campaign on March, 1953, officers of the civil affairs and judicial departments of local governments in all districts were given training in pushing through the marriage laws. According to the report in People's Daily on May 13, 1953, a total of 3,477,368 junior officers went through a course of training according to the incomplete statistics made in 1,118 hsien, 110 municipalities, four Banners and one mining district. Besides, Communist junior officers in various places called family or village meetings to expand the "push through the marriage-laws" campaign by making use of public places where young men and women would have more opportunities to make love through more contacts, thus attaining their object of destroying the Chinese original moral system.
- Conditions of implementation
  - Delinquency of Communist officers and resistance by the masses
    - The Communist officers availed themselves of the "push through the marriage-laws" campaign to flirt with girls, encourage divorce and break family relations. But, on the other hand, they induced, threatened, raped and obstructed those women who demanded divorce. In case of the latter's refusal, they would not support their divorce. The judicial officers often put off the handling of the divorce cases. For instance, in a single month of June, 1952, 11,259 divorce cases were delayed trial in 79 hsien, Kwangtung. Most of the Communist junior officers interfered with those young men and women in love while obstructing divorces demanded by others. Cases of beating and torturing women to death often happened. Such inhuman methods inevitably aroused hatred of the masses as well as the open opposition of organized masses under the auspices of the Communist party, youth corps and militia, labour, and women's organizations, thus, giving rise to social confusion and chaos.
  - Tragedies of divorces and remarriages
    - The Communists under the call for marriage and divorce freedom tried every possible way to destroy the affections between husband and wife, to embitter the feelings between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law, to interfere with the re-marriage of widows, to uproot the conception of chastity, to advocate freedom in making love and encourage sexual indulgence and perfunctory marriages, thus producing a state of debauchery and social chaos and enabling the Communists to exercise direct control. During the last three years ending July, 1953, about eight million couples were either induced or compelled to divorce and more then five million widows were forced to re-marry, according to reliable sources. Because of dibauchery, parents persuaded their sons and daughters to marry as quickly as possible. According to reports in Communist newspapers and other reliable sources, about 60 million people got married during the last three years.
  - Unprecedented tragedies of women's suicide and slaughter
    - Because of the Communist Compulsion, persuasion and seduction, many women demanded divorces which resulted mostly in suicide or slaughter. According to reports in the Communist newpapers and other reliable sources, the first year after the promulgation of the marriage law in 1950 witnessed the death of 36,000 women, and at least 62,000 women died in the second year. Since then up to November, 1952, the number of deaths rapidly increased to 154,000 when the Communists took drastic measures to implement the marriage law. In these three years, more than 250,000 women died under the marriage law. On March 1, 1953 Communist Yu Hai, Deputy Director of Women's League, canton, revealed, "It has been already three years since the implementation of the new marriage law. Because of the distorted interpretation of the marriage law by the junior officers, about 100,000 women died either by committing suicide or being slaughtered." Based on this estimate, at least 500,000 women have died up to now.

CHART SHOWING THE COMMUNIST LAND REFORM AND LAND RE-CENTRALIZATION

LAND REFORM MOVEMENT

- Objectives
  - To destroy the traditional life and family system of peasants and to establish serfdom of "farm collectivization" under the cloak of re-distributing lands.
- Process of land reform movement
  - Time
    - Two periods: the first period preceded the fall of the mainland, and the second period began from June, 1950, to the end of 1952.
  - Propaganda
    - The Communists made use of the conflicts between landlords and tenants to inflame the hatred between them. Under the slogan of the poor to assert themselves, they advocated overthrow of the exploiting class. To embitter the feelings of tenants against landlords, they fabricated that the landlords constituted only 10% of the farming population but they owned from 70-80 percent of all the land which had served as a means of their exploitation of the tillers. This has been proved entirely false by their own figures of land confiscation.
  - Mobilisation
    - To mobilise the masses rascals and radicals as their tools to organise farmers' associations, women's associations, land reform working groups, family-property division groups door-closing groups, children's groups and struggle groups.
  - Liquidation
    - To investigate the people's properties and classify them into different categories. To settle accounts with the propertyowners and drive them ant
  - Struggles
    - Preparations for struggles
      - Employment of Communist henchmen as catspaws, fabrication of false charges, holding of public trials and execution of "counterrevolutionaries".
    - Forms of tortures
      - (I) Dark-jail imprisonment; (II) Pomergrante-plucking; (III) Pear-frozing; (IV) Pleasure-platform (V) Squating down on dung-pit; (VI) Capsicum-water-drinking; (VII) Looking to Central Government (fastening the victim to the top of a tree) and (VIII) Women's parade with their breasts stitched through with wire threads.
    - Methods of slaughter
      - (I) Shooting; (II) Head-chopping; (III) Waist-Cutting; (IV) Strangulation; (V) Death-starvation; (VI) Alive-burying; (VII) Death-burning; (VIII) Stick-and-stone beating; (IX) Five-horse-tearing; (X) Cutting-into-pieces, and (XI) Ship-sailing on Land (victim's feet tied to the tail of a horse which runs at gallop).
    - Struggles vs family members
      - They are driven out of their homes even without being permitted to bring any personal effects with them. They are only permitted to beg within a demarcated area. Young men are forced to join army and girls to serve in army-comfort groups.
- Results
  - According to the Communist report, in the course of "land reform", more than 300 million peasants shared a total acreage of 700 million acres (Mow) (10% of which originally belong to foreigners and temples). This has proved false the communist propaganda that land-lords owned 70-80% of farming land because the figure, as calculated on this basis, would be around 1,540 million acres in stead of 700 million.
    - Redistribution of land unfair
      - 1. The total land of a given district is equally divided among the peasants tribution.

Redistribution of land unfair

1. The total land of a given district is equally divided among the peasants in that district. So, the share obtained by a peasant in one district is different from that in another district.
2. District (hisen) "government" has the right to keep a portion of good land. Chairmen of Farmers' Associations, village chiefs and chairmen of Women's Associations have the right to choose good lands before re-distribution.
3. Servicemen's dependents could get more land.
4. Those who have served many years in the army could get double share of land upon presentation of certificates to that effect.
5. Retired Servicemen could get double share of land.
6. Radical elements could get good land.

Farmers subject to exploitation after land reform

The farmers are required to pay more than forty kinds of taxes of which the heaviest are the following:

1. Public Food or (Kung-Liang) paid to the Government.
2. Educational Food (for development of education).
3. Food for servicemen's dependents.
4. Food for the victorious poor.
5. National defense tax.
6. Victory bonds.
7. Reconstruction bonds.
8. House tax.
9. Militia-maintenance contributions.
10. Front-support contributions.
11. Dam-repair contributions.
12. Army-comfort contributions.
13. Horse-provision contributions.
14. Wooden-fuel contributions.

A peasant is robbed of what he has earned throughout the whole year. According to the Communist statistics and other reliable sources, a peasant gets less than 10% of his annual income after deducting 28% for productive capital, 21% for farm tax, 4.2% for sub-tax, 12% for contributions and 25% for allocations.

Re-Centralization of Land

From mutual-aid groups and farm productive cooperatives to collective Farm

(A) Since August, 1950, mutual-aid groups were organised for collective purchase of farming implements and plough-animals as well as for accumulation of small amount of public-property in order to lay the basis of farm collectivilisation.

(B) Mutual-aid groups were changed into preliminary farm productive cooperatives. By the end of 1954, 12,783,257 peasants' families (about 10.5% of the total peasants' families of the nation) joined the cooperatives. From July, 1955, to January, 1956, more than 92,810,000 peasants' families (about 78% of the total) were forced to join the cooperatives after adopting drastic measures to check rightist leanings and accelerate the process of collectivilisation upon publication of Mao-Tse-tung's thesis on "Farm Cooperative Problems". By the end of 1955, more than 70% of the total arable land were re-centralised for production.

(C) Preliminary farm productive cooperatives, with village as a unit were incorporated and developed into a high type of cooperatives - collective farm. Under this system, all farming implements, plough-animals and land, were turned into public-owned. By January, 1956 about 24,590,000 peasants' families were forced to join this high type of cooperatives. It has been planned to complete this process of collectivilisation with in a period of three years.

Policy of fixed production, purchase and sale

Since November, 1953, the system of collective purchase and sale was carried out. In spring, 1955, a further step was taken to effect a fixed production, purchase and sale policy. Communist officers conducted investigations into the acreage of cultivation by each farmer' family and fixed the amount of production. Then after deduction of agricultural taxes and amount of rations from the fixed amount of production, the rest would be purchased by the puppet government. In case of deficit, coupons would be issued with which the holder could buy rice from government-owned food stores. Such coupons should be brought with oneself even in travel.

Exploitation of farmers' labour

The annual minimum working days for a man are 250 while for a woman it would be no less than 120 days to be engaged in farming and other by-production besides housekeeping.

Development of state-owned farm

It is planned to expand state-owned farms of 13,360,000 acres to 140 million acres with in a period of 12 years.

Farmers deprived of purchase-and-sale rights

According to the report on purchase and sale of land in Paoting District, Hopei, made by Chen Pai Ta to the second meeting of the second session of the "National People's Congress" in February 2, 1956, a total of 43,890 acres (Mou) were bought and sold in 1949; 54,494 in 1950; and the figure reached 115,188 in 1951. Since the establishment of farm cooperatives, the figures came down to 91,421 acres in 1952; 78,450 in 1953; 36,215 in 1954 and 8,290 in 1955. This shows that the peasants would soon become serfs of the state.

CHART SHOWING THE FOREIGN TRADE RELATIONS OF THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS

WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

Form of trade—Subjected to low price, exaction and extortion of material supplies of "colonialism" of Soviet Russia.

Exports——— Rice, soya beans, maize, meats, all kinds of minerals, vegetable oils, ground nuts, hide and leather, bristles, silk, silk piece goods, tea, tung oil, wool, tobacco, and fruits.

Imports——— Metallurgical equipment; equipment for the excavation of mines; power-generating equipment; automobiles; structural steel; tractors; agricultural machinery; metals, petroleum and products; chemicals; other industrial and mining equipment.
Equipments for 156 industrial projects are supplied by Soviet Russia to the puppet peiping regime through foreign trade channels in exchange for important raw materials produced by Red China.

WITH THE SOVIET SATELLITES IN EASTERN EUROPE

Form of trade—Adjustment of material supplies among the countries of the Communist bloc under a uniform program directed by the Soviet Russia.

Exports——— Raw silk, silk piece goods, soya beans, groundnuts, tea, bristle, tungsten, antimony and other minerals, Tung Oil, casings, agricultural products, grains, tobacco, jute and ramie, cotton, wool, oil and fats, hide and leather.

Imports——— Manufacturing equipment; precision machines; all kinds of industrial equipment; iron and steel products; machine tool; agricultural machinery; medical apparatus; locomotives; weapons and ammunition; vehicles; metal products; electrical appliances; fiber products; crane; bulldozer; optical instruments; surveying instruments; photographic supplies; rubber products; tractor; chemical fertilizer; dyes and pharmaceuticals.

WITH NORTH KOREA AND VIETMINH

Form of trade—Unconditional supplying of materials or unequal bartering ordered by the Soviet Russia.
The Chinese Communists regularly supply various commodities to North Korea and Vietminh They have unconditionally given to the North Koreans and Vietminhs supplies worth Jmp $ 600,000,000 (Jenminpiao.)

TRADE WITH COUNTRIES OF THE COMMUNIST BLOC

CHINESE COMMUNIST REGIME

PERCENTAGES OF PEIPING'S TRADE WITH THE COMMUNIST AND NON-COMMUNIST COUNTRIES IN THE PAST SIX

CHINESE COMMUNIST REGIME

TRADE WITH NON-COMMUNIST COUNTRIES

OF PEIPING'S TRADE WITH THE COMMUNIST AND NON-COMMUNIST COUNTRIES IN THE PAST SIX YEARS:

Aim ~~~~~~~ Political, economic and psychological gains

1. To wreck the United Nations embargo order, and undermine UN prestige
2. To obtain strategic materials
3. To undermine the unity of the free world and to isolate the anti-Communist democratic nations
4. To prepare stepping-stones for the establishment of diplomatic relations under the pretense of developing trade relations
5. To facilitate political infiltration and subversive activities under the camouflage of trade.
6. To dump Chinese products in foreign markets, while smuggling narcotics to earn enough foreign exchange to subsidize Communist activities in various areas of the world.

Trade Methods ~ Will take whatever means to attain the end

1. To obtain strategic materials either directly or indirectly through signing of "trade agreements"
2. To despatch trade missions to non-Communist nations to engage in political in filtration and propaganda.
3. For those non-Communist nations with which it has no diplomatic relations, to make use of leftist organization such as "Associations for the Promotion of Foreign Trade" as a medium to develop trade.
4. To intensify propaganda activities by holding products' exhibitions.
5. To buy strategic materials with the help of professional smugglers.

Trade Conditions ~ Large scale exports to non-Communist nations appear impossible.

As most of peiping's vital products are exported to other countries of the Communist bloc, it is practically impossible for the Chinese Commnist regime to export any sizable amount of these supplies to non-Communist countries. The commodity items listed in peiping's trade agreements with non-Communist nations are put in only for propaganda purposes. All that the Red regime can export are rice, coal, native products, special products, and small quantities of light industrial products and industrial raw materials. The exports to countries in Asia and Africa by the Chinese Communists include sewing machines, bicycles, iron wire, nails, cotton cloth, cotton yarn, newsprint, enamelled wares, beer, fountain pens and daily necessities. Their main purpose is to win the Afro-Asian markets to obtain sorely-needed strategic materials.

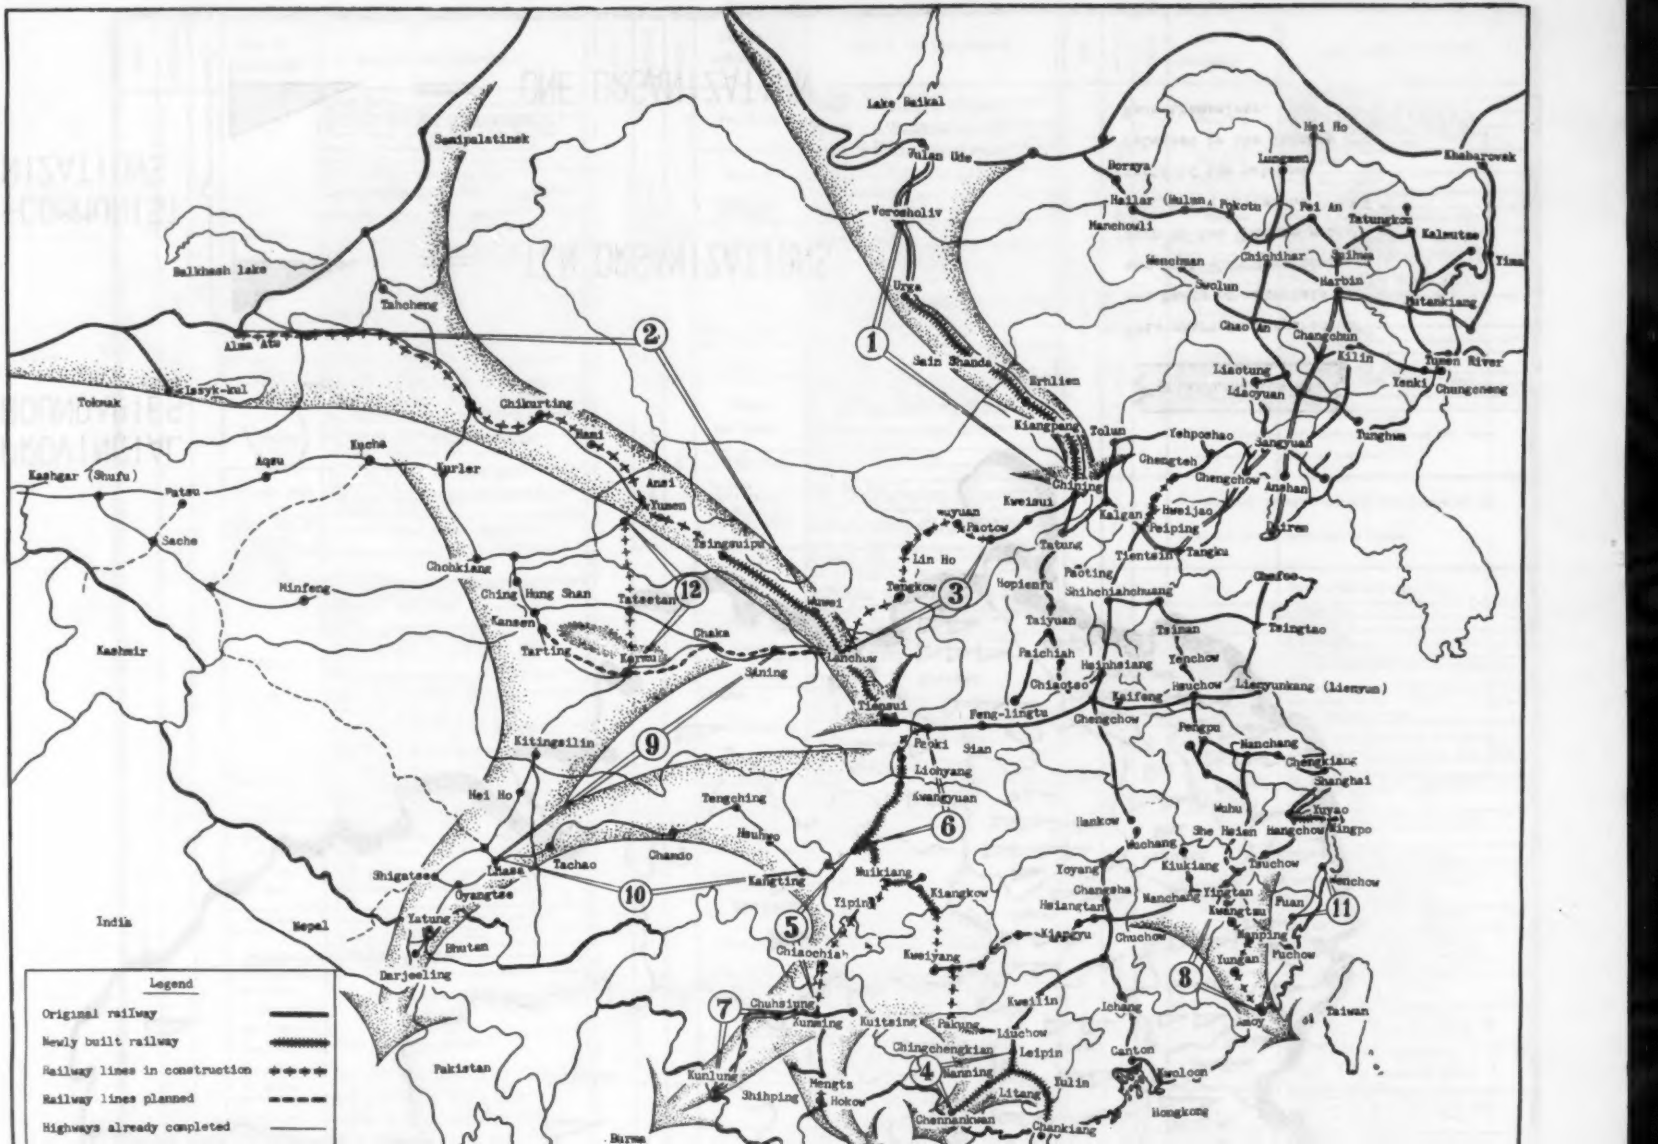
MAP SHOWING THE COMMUNIST PLOT THROUGH CONSTRUCTION OF RAILROADS AND HIGHWAYS



NOTES

Since the Communist seizure of the Chinese mainland in 1949, the Peiping Communist puppet regime bound by the master-and-slave relationship with Soviet Russia, proceeded with the construction of strategetic railroads and highways in accordance with the Soviet plot of world conquest and the so-called "revolutionary strategy" The following railroads and highways, either completed, planned, or in process of construction bespeak the Communist plot of aggression.

1. Tsining-Uran Udek Railroad: This line, about 1,200 km. in length, starts from Tsining, Suiyuan, runs through Urga (later renamed Ulan Bator)and terminated at Uran Udek. The section between Urga and Uran Udek about 400 km. in length, was constructed by the Soviets in 1949, while the section between Tsining and Urga was jointly constructed by the Chinese Communist and Outer Mogolia under the agreement reached by Soviet Russia, Chinese Communist and Outer Mongolia on September 15, 1952. After the completion of the section between Tsining and Urga in November 1955, the Tsining-Uran Udek line was opened to traffic since the beginning of this year. This gigantic line, joining the Siberian line in the north, uniting with the Peiping-Queisui, Peiping-Hankou and Tientsin-Pukow lines in the south and connecting the Paotou-Lanchow and Lanchow-Alma Ata lines in the west is a main communication line with which the Soviet Russia not only may grasp the strategetic materials from these areas but make its aggression in the Far East more convenient as well.

2. Lanchow-Alma Ata Railroad:-- This line is 3,240 km. in length running from Lanchow, Kansu, through Tihua, Sinkiang, to Alma Ata in Soviet Russia. Its construction was commenced on October 1, 1952. By the end of 1955, a section of this line leading to Tsingshui, 677 km. west of Lanchow and 140 from Yumen was completed. It is planned to extend its construction as far as 100 km. west of Yumen by the end of 1956. This line connecting the Turkestan-Siberian railway, when completed, would greatly facilitate the Soviet exploitation of oil mines in Yumen and other vital strategetic materials in Northwest China. After it unites with the Paoki-Chengtu, Chengtu-Kunming and Kunming-Pisechai railroads, it would bring the Soviets to the door of Vietminh. It would serve as a main line of Soviet Aggression in the Far East and Southeast Asia.

3. Paotou-Lanchow Railroad:-This line is more than 1,100 km. running from Lanchow through Tuichuan to Paotou. Its construction was commenced in November, 1954, and more then 80km. of the line east of Lanchow was built in November, 1955. when the whole line is completed, it will connect the Lanchow-Alma Ata line in the west, the Pieping-Queisui line in the east, the Tsining-Uran Udek line in the north and the Paoki-Chengtu line in the south. It has a great strategic value.

4. Leipin-Chennankwan Railroad:- This line is 420 km. running from Leipin, Kwangsi, to Chennankwan via Naning. Its construction was commenced in October, 1950, and completed on November 7, 1951. Large quantities of strategetic materials were transported to Vietminh by this line. An agreement signed in Pieping by the Chinese Communist regime and Vietminh on December 24, 1954, extended this line to Hanoi. On February 28, 1955, the extension line was completed and the whole line was in operation. Henceforth, the Chinese Communist can give direct military support to Vietminh.

5. Chengtu-Kunming Railroad:- Running from Chengtu to Kunming, the whole line is 1,032 km. Survey of this line was conducted in 1953, and its construction was scheduled to commence in February, 1956. Connecting the Paoki-Chengtu line and the Lanchow-Alma Ata line in the north and joining the Kunming-Pisechai line in the south, the whole line, when completed, would serve as the most effective means of the Soviet aggression in the Southeast Asia.

6. Paoki-Chengtu Railroad:- This line is 672 km. running from Paoki, Shensi, to Chengtu, Szechuan. Its construction was started on July 3, 1952. By the end of 1955, about 450 km. from Chengtu to Lishyang were constructed. The whole line, when completed, will connect the Langhai line in the north, the Lanchow-Alma Ata line in the west, and the Chengtu-Kunming and the Kunming-Pisechai line in the south, thus facilitating the Soviet and the Chinese Communist aggression in the Southeast Asia through Indo-China.

7. Yunnan-Burma Railroad:- This is more than 700km. running from Kunming Yunnan, to Kunlong in Burmese border via Chuhsiung. Its construction was started in 1952. The whole line, when completed will join the Chengtu-Kunming, Paoki-Chengtu and Lanchow-Alma Ata lines, and provide the Soviet Russia and the Chinese Communist with a short-cut way through which the Soviet Russia and the Chinese Communist may march out their troops to Burma and India.

8. Yingtan-Amoy Railroad:- This is more than 700 km. running from Yingtan, Kiangsi, to Amoy, Fukien. Its construction was started in July, 1954, and about 140 km. of the line have been constructed. After its completion, it will join the Chekiang-Kiangsi line and become the main supply line to the militaty districts along the southeast coasts.

9. Tsinghai-Tibet Highway:- This line is 2,100 km. running from Sinin, Tsinghai, to Lhasa, Tibet. It was constructed by forced labour beginning in 1950 and opened to traffic on December 25, 1954 after its completion on 18 of the same month. Since then great efforts have been made to extend it to Jihketse via Kiangtse where the construction of a branch line running to Yatung via Pelt is in full swing. These lines, when completed, would strengthen the Soviet control over Tibet and facilitate their encroachment on India.

10. Sikang-Tibet Highway:- This highway is 2,255 km. stretching from Kanting, Sikang, to Lhasa, Tibet. It was constructed by forced labour beginning in spring, 1950, and opened to traffic on December 25, 1954. It connects the Szechuan-Sikang and the Yen-Si highways in the east, and the Tsinghai-Tibet highway in the north. Through its connections with other highways, it sets up a net-work uniting the northwest and southwest parts of the mainland, thus strengthening the Communist control over the southwest part of China and facilitating their aggression against Burma and India.

11. Foochow-Wenchow Highway:- This road covers a distance of 438 km. running from Foochow to Wenchow and was opened to traffic on January 1, 1956. It is a vital line between Fukien and Chekiang through which the military supplies of the Chinese Communist may be made directly to the military districts in the south-east coastal areas.

12. Tunhwang-Garertum Highway:- This road is more than 600 km. between Tunhwang and Garertum. Its construction was started on May 13,1955. It was scheduled to be completed in February, 1956. Joining the Lanchow-Alma Ata Railroad in the north and the Tsinghai-Tibet Highway in the south, it is a short-cut way from Soviet Russia to Tibet, and forms an important line through which the military movement of the Soviet Russia and the Chinese Communist may be made more convenient; thus paving the way for their encroachment on India.

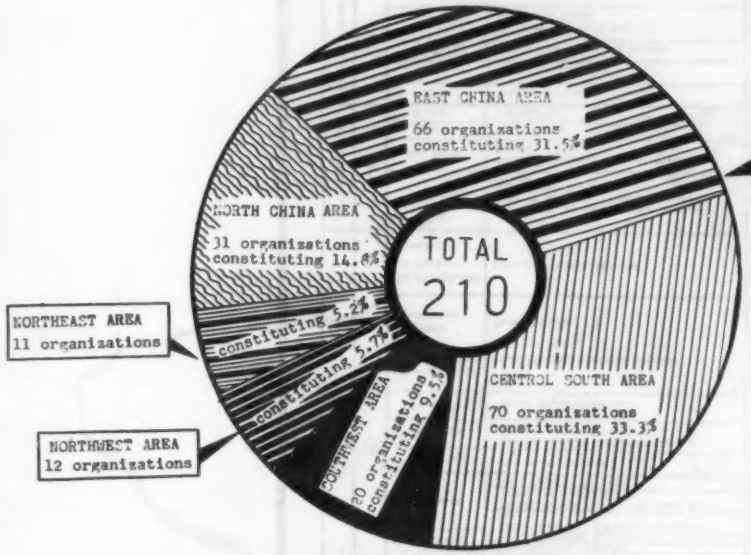
"Chung Tao" is an anti-Communist organization set up by the people along Weinan, Shensi Province against Communist oppression. According to a news release by the Communist Hsin Hua News Agency on July 6, 1955 and the report made by Lu Jui-hsiang, Minister of Public Security of the puppet Red regime in Peiping, at the "National People's Congress" in July of the same year, more than 3,000 disciples and 434 leaders of "Chung Tao" were placed under arrest in the period from November, 1954 to January, 1955. About 102 dark rooms and cellars of different kinds and descriptions were discovered. In addition, there were a large quantity of rifles, bullets, and the party flags of the Kuomintang. From the figures given above, one may visualize how big is this organization.

CHART SHOWING NUMBER OF ANTI-COMMUNIST ORGANIZATIONS AND CASES ON THE CHINESE MAINLAND

ANTI-COMMUNIST ORGANIZATIONS

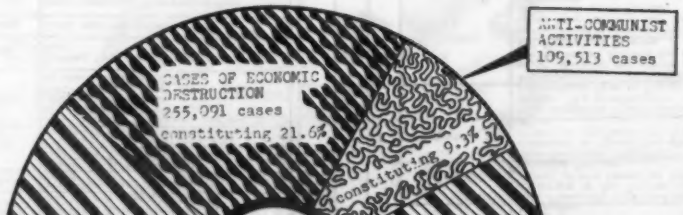
January, 1955 — February, 1956



Prepared on the basis of a report made by Lu Jui-hsiang, Minister of Public Security of the puppet Peiping regime, at the "National People's Congress" in July, 1955 and the materials released in the Communist papers.

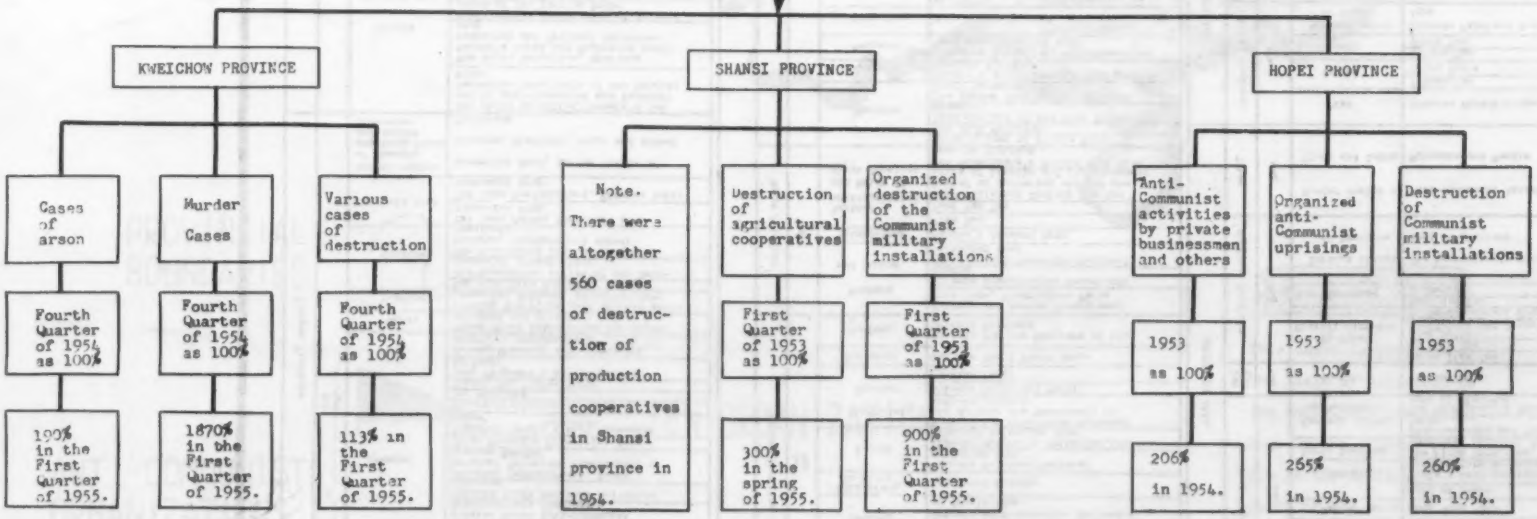
ANTI-COMMUNIST CASES

January, 1954 — May, 1955



Prepared on the basis of the reports made by Shih Liang,

Prepared on the basis of the reports made by Shih Liang, Minister of Justice; Tung Pi-wu, President of the Supreme People's Court; and Chang Ting-cheng, Procurator-General of the puppet regime in Peiping at the "National People's Congress" in July, 1955



All anti-Communist cases as listed above were handled by different levels of puppet people's court. In a span of seventeen months, 1,179,217 cases were handled, averaging 69,360 cases a month. However, there are a great many of anti-Communist organizations and cases which have not been discovered by the Communists. The actual number must be much greater. It shows how the Communists are hated by our compatriots on the mainland. The collapse of the puppet regime in Peiping is within sight.
